SAVE SOULS.

A campaign of newspaper advertising in eastern centres has resulted in great satisfaction to the group of masters conducting it. A number of souls have been saved, say the masters, through the simple publication in the columns of the daily press of passages of Scripture and words of warning to moral avarice. The masters are so impressed with the power of newspaper publicity that they are passing on the campaign and warning all souls. Some have even approached John D. Rockefeller with a proposition that he spend half a million or so in newspaper space publishing simple Scripture passages, etc., on subjects of all vital human interest. The result has been more than the platform of the stage to propagate this. A campaign of religious advertising with all the additional pull of striking novelty, will bring results unsurpassed by even those of a revival meeting. Advertising thus is intended to attract humanity whether salvation or a safe and use newspaper space with effect.

QUIET CITIZENS WANT QUIET.

Prince Rupert's population consists of a number of noisy people whose names you know without need of frequent familiarity for them, and a much greater number of quiet, peaceful people whose names you can only find by tracing through the daily news or the city directory. Every community in town has its noisy citizens who, through the carelessness of their conduct, the carelessness of their surroundings, the carelessness of their manners, and sometimes through the carelessness of their speech, distract the attention of the public, causing the loss of the quiet, restful atmosphere which the noisy ones, through the carelessness of others, are destroying. These citizens ought to be made to understand that their conduct is not only annoying to the quiet, restful surroundings, but is also disturbing to the quiet, restful surroundings of others. It is essential to clean up our streets, quiet the noisy ones, and restore the quiet, restful surroundings of others.

Above is a typical group of Chinese soldiers of the older regime whose attitude to the innovations of the new Republic under Dr. Sun Yat Sen, has been causing continued uneasiness to the administration. Frequent minor mutinies, and fractious with the officials of the new regime have been occurring, and these are rumors now of a general revolt.

THE FUNNIER SIDE OF THE REGINA CYCLONE BEGINS TO COME OUT NOW IT'S ALL OVER

Regina, July 27.—The humorous phases of the storm are being discussed when men congregate, as also are the freaks of the wind. Judge Lammot of the Supreme Court went to close a window and found himself looking out into the world; the wall having collapsed. A young lad on Albert street was lying on his back, having himself in the kitchen when she looked up to find herself going into the street, where motorists were hurrying for shelter while another woman, indulging in a bath, was deposited in a neighbor's house. Fortunately, he quickly found a napkin to wrap her up in while she was taken into an unoccupied house and recovered with groceries. The young English girl, however, was swimming in the Moose Jaw River. She was on the swimming platform in deep water; it was her purpose to show her two young children the formation. However, she, while swimming, got into the current of breakers. The large log her house saved the little ones from being blanched with the furnace sand.

Say, and Care.
The winds, all sorts of directions, from one house and direction, from another, and sometimes from one house and direction, from another, have for years disturbed the business end of town. Business, however, has been conducted in the same old fashioned way, notwithstanding the fact that the business end of town has suffered of greatly. "It was not so bad," he explained, "but the hall was fully well uncomfortable." Who says business are grimmies?

The cyclone has been received and was passed before the city council on Monday evening from the military secretary, Mr. G. W. H. Ross, who gave the report of the proposed visit of His Excellency the Governor-General to the business end of town. He said that the Governor-General would be accompanied by the Duke of Connaught, who was in residence at the time of the cyclone. The Duke of Connaught has been received, for the destruction of sent asking for any special favors from the wind through scurries or otherwise to request him to come and complete to the matter.

In the course of the old stories, Viscount Weymouth and Hudson Bay Company, of wood, firmly packed and said to be of excellent quality, must have gone west on their camping trip across America, Victoria Park. At the time of the cyclone, however, was also brought to this building, being, however, freed from the lake almost entirely two hours later, ran from the bay, and two newspapers, one park, on Pender Island.
