DEE-LICIOUS! THAT'S what Canadian National Railways Chef Instructor Joseph F. Nellis seems to be saying after producing a rich plum pudding on a CNR dining car. Chef Nellis gives away some of his culinary secrets below and on Page 3 opposite. Of course, he has to divide his large recipes, with which he serves more than 21,000 Christmas rail travellers, into "home-sized" portions.

Carving Turkey Not Chore If Simple Rules Followed

When the turkey faces you on the dining room table Christmas Day, Canadian National Railways Chef Instructor J. F. Nellis' advice is to first slice off the right leg.

You can carve it, if it's not already spoken for by Junior, by holding on to the drumstick and laying it flat on a platter. Start by carving the meat off the tender second joint first, and the rest will slice off easily.

The right leg attended to, the breast is next on the list. Here Mr. Nellis recommends the carver hold the left leg to steady the bird, then carve towards oneself. This system, he says, produces fine slices that don't fall apart. You strike the grain when cleaving in the other direction and it is harder to keep slices thin.

The rest of the bird can be carved in this fashion. When the wing is reached it can be cut off and the tasty, popular meat around it sliced—always with the knife drawn toward the carver.

In this way the "head of the table" can avoid crumbling, clumsy pieces of meat and produce clean slices that look attractive on every Christmas plate.

WHY BOXING DAY?

Boxing Day, December 26, falls on the Feast of St. Stephen, and its name originated in England as the day on which Christmas boxes or presents were given to employees. In Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, it is a legal holiday.
