SANITARY INSPECTOR SAILS SOUTH

L. E. McFarlane, the city sanitary inspector, left yesterday morning on the Prince George for a two weeks' holiday, and will take in all the lower coast cities before returning north again. It is rumored that Mr. McFarlane stole a highly successful march on his conferees of the city staff, when he slipped off south on a mission that means matrimony.

MERELY MABEL REMARKS

That Pastor Kerr should say tomorrow night: "Ladies over thirty-five need not remove their hats."

That the best way to dispose of a cart wheel creation removed to oblige the pastor is to pin it to the coat collar of the man in the seat in front of you.

That Vancouver's very latest fall fashion is the neatest thing in gum boots and slicker, and the fall referred to in Vancouver is the rainfall.

That the city has gone into the money lending business, and if the bylaws don't pass the employees who got raises may have to refund.

That these daily bylaws are a bit of bluff anyway, blime if they ain't.

That in connection with the Hell controversy she has read a communication from Pastor Russell's "religious perambulator."

That after that she expects a letter from a religious buggy, and next from a religious bughouse.

That the proverbial Highland man's hell was to have toothache, an eyelash in his eye and news that his best girl had just gone off with the other fellow.

That after his business trip south "Grip" has returned in great form.

Excellent Empress Films.

At the Empress Theatre this week-end an exceptionally fine film show is being enjoyed by throngs of patrons of the ever popular pioneer house. Empty benches are very foreign to the Empress, but this time the special attractions of the "Pirate" film, Pathe's popular weekly reel and a famous "Phone Prince" film fairly eclipse even the Empress' previous records.

Today is the final grand rally and some tempting bargains will be given at Wallace's Sale. 194
