Winter Carnival Candidate Kept Busy With Campaign

By TOM McCUSKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Nancy Lee Petersen, tall, blue-eyed office secretary, has had to settle for a quick sandwich at lunchtime since she entered Quebec City's big winter beauty campaign.

Nancy Lee is one of seven girls, from 18 to 24 years old, campaigning for election as qeen of the winter carnival, a 48-day festival being revived here for the first time in 24 years.

"If it isn't practising a radio talk, calling on a business man or sitting for a dress designer's fitting, I'm shivering outdoors while posing for pictures," says Nancy.

"Somehow, most of these appointments come during my lunch hour."

ALL HAVE SPONSORS

The election began Dec. 6 with ballots selling for 10 cents each. There's no limit on the number that may be purchased until the campaign ends Jan. 31. Various organizations are supporting the ticket sales on behalf of their respective candidates.

For the seven contestants—six brunettes and a blonde — the pace has been hectic.

Nancy Lee, 21, is the candidate of the English-speaking Quebec Junior Board of Trade, but she must use French also in radio appearances and occasional speeches.

Roberte Dufour, a third-year home economics student at Laval University, has had to skip classes to pose for promotional pictures. The 20-year-old blonde is the university's candidate.

Estelle Cote, 18, a grey-eyed daughter of a department store owner, represents the curlers.

Marthe Grenier, 20, hazel-eyed brunette, at five feet seven the tallest, represents skiers.

Patricia Lewin is the 18-year-old blue-eyed candidate of the French-speaking Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Francoise Poirier, 21, blue-eyed is the snowshoers' candidate.

Gisele Poulin, 24-year-old swimming star, represents civil employees.

One will be crowned Feb. 1 at a giant pageant at the Quebec Coliseum by the king of the New Orleans Mardi Gras. From then on she will reign over the carnival which includes snow-sculpturing contests, masquerade skating parties, sports events, parades and at least two all-night celebrations.

Election procedure is unusual but that is the way the winter carnival committee of businessmen hope to defray the $35,000 they are spending on the carnival which begins Jan. 6 and ends Mardi Gras Day, Feb. 22.
