YOU AUTO KNOW!

Here we are back at the same old stand after an absence of some months—been waiting for someone to write the editor suggesting that I've been missed. I give in—a guy can only wait so long, ego or no ego!

Besides trying to sell cars I have a purpose this day—we've got another July 1st, show on the way and my job is to keep you posted on developments.

Big deal this year is going to be this Miss P.N.E. affair. Already we have four (4) aspirants entered with promise of further anouncements daily. Lucky Miss will spend a thrill packed few days at the P.N.E. representing us—might even try to arrange that she ride in nothing but a Plymouth while there just to make the trip more delightful.

While speaking of beauties — got a $100.00 beauty on our used car lot that will go a long way. If you've got a sense of humor and $35.00 down payment you too can keep up with the Joneses. I'm at Rupert Motors by the way, in case you have an interest.

Was at a meeting of the Elk's Lodge last eve. and if Dominion Day 1956 in Prince Rupert doesn't far surpass the Chicago World's Fair then there was sure a bunch of boys talking through their Fezzes.

Bands, clowns, parade, outdoor theatricals, sports, music and song were some of the subjects and they went so far as to suggest a Barbecue believe it or not! Watch for further announcements and while you are watching watch you don't get taken in on some of those new fangled automobiles — better still, drop down and take a ride in a Chrysler—I'm around most of the time!

SOCCER PRACTICE SCHEDULED FOR ROOSEVELT PARK TONIGHT

A practice for those interested in playing on an all-star soccer team against Kitimat has been called for tonight at 8 p.m. at Roosevelt Park, Maurice Bishop, Prince Rupert soccer spokesman said this morning.

Kitimat and District Soccer Association president George Madden inquired last week if there was a possibility of getting a game with a Prince Rupert team in July. The smelter city association sent a representative team to Terrace June 2 and won a 7-0 decision.

Kitimat plans to send an all-star team to Vancouver August 11.

Outdoors with Marty

Lots and lots of anglers fishing the Kitimat River, they are getting wonderfully large catches, and it is a crying shame. A large percentage of these anglers are new Canadians who are not over well informed as to the species of fishes they catch, but this does not prevent them carrying or tossing away too many spent steelheads that should be let alone to return to the sea.

So many of these people have never known the great privilege and joy of being able to catch anything larger than a six-incher, consequently they really go to town when the fishing is good, and everything with fins gets added to the bag.

Perhaps the Rod and Gun people in Kitimat could make up a bunch of slides and give a showing of legitimate catches for the benefit of conservation; by so doing a nucleus of informed anglers would be built up that would carry the good word amongst their own people, to the advantage of both themselves and future generations.

Rainbow Lake paid off to trout fishermen over the weekend, perhaps because it is the lowest level of water around. Prudhomme Lake and Diana Creek had their quota of anglers, but high water is bringing much feed into the water and the fish take is consequently low. Rainbow-steelhead in the nine-inch class are being taken from just below the dam at Kloiya, these are first time migrants making their way to salt water, so they are part of the normal loss that takes place in fishdom between the egg and maturity.

Having some trouble making solid knots with nylon? Most of the monofilaments when made up into a jam type of knot will let go under strain. Just use a match or cigarette lighter and burn the end of the nylon, it will quickly build up a neat blob of plastic that will make an effective slip-stopper for you.

Two observant eyes and a game of patience gave Sofie Giske a closeup photograph of a female mink, she would not leave the den that doubtless was sheltering a bunch of kits. (Imagine a lady being contented with merely a picture of a mink coat!!)

Ever try catching crabs on spinning gear or conventional rod and reel? It is a trick for two and here is how it's done. At very low tide visit any pier or float from which you can spot crabs on the bottom at any distance from yourself. Take any ordinary hook and hang a small sinker upon it. Size of sinker depends on weight you usually use on your gear.) Then fasten a small chunk of white fish or fat on the hook above the sinker, tie it on if you wish. Now take a good hold, then rest your rod-tip solidly against the edge of the pier and reel w-e-r-y slowly; the crab will hang on alright, and when he starts to be lifted straight up, partner gets down on his tummy with the landing net and scoops just before the quarry reaches the surface. The same trick can be performed from a boat, main thing is to reel slow and steady; this is a really enjoyable and effective stunt, try it, and turn the small ones back to grow.

Toronto Student Heads Field Of Olympic Riders

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Canada's John Rumble rode to a midmorning lead in today's cross-country event of the Olympic equestrian competition with an excellent 142.53 point total and 19.73 penalty points over a treacherous, muddy course.

The 22-year-old University of Toronto student, in his first try at international riding competition, had run up 122.8 penalty points in the first two days of the Olympics here and was 16th among the 57 riders before today's cross-country.

He rode the Irish-bred Citroy all three days of competition.

Overnight rain and more this morning had left the endurance course in treacherous condition, and many riders tumbled on the fences of the cross-country portion through the Swedish countryside north of Stockholm.

The other two competing Canadians had still to post scores when Rumble set his total for today. Tuesday Brian Herbinson, 27, Toronto insurance worker, was 25th with 131.2 penalty points aboard Tara, an Irish-bred 12-year-old. Jimmy Elder also 22 and a U. of Toronto student, had 141.2 penalty points aboard the Canadian-bred Colleen for 30th place.

"Free and Easy" Visit For Duke Plan of Aussies

SYDNEY (AP)— The Duke of Edinburgh's four-week Olympic tour of Australia will be on an informal, "free and easy" basis.

If successful the tour may be the forerunner of a series of similar royal visits to Commonwealth countries.

The duke will officially open the Olympic Games in Melbourne Thursday, Nov. 22. He will spend four full days, another afternoon and a night at the Games.

The itinerary for the visit will leave the duke much more free time than the royal visit in 1954. It will be a combined official tour and holiday.

The duke will have several days "off" for unscheduled and informal walks and drives.

Savoy's Heavy Bats Dump Union Out of Second Spot

Led by centre-fielder Bill Marback and shortstop Bob Anderson, who each drove in three runs, Savoy Hotel posted a 14-9 victory over Local 708 last night, dropping the union team from second to third place in the league standings.

Five hits and two errors in the seventh inning brought in seven runs to take the Hotelmen out of reach of the 708 squad whom they were leading 7-6 going into the inning.

Lloyd Lahti was the winner, giving up nine hits, seven walks and striking out eight. Union left hander Bill Hardy is the loser, allowing 14 hits, three walks and striking out three.

Marback with a triple and three doubles in five trips was the hotel's top batter.
