OUTDOORS . . . with MARTY

By ERIC S. MARTIN
Daily News Outdoors Columnist

So a New Year has come to Kaien Island, and while the Rod and Gun people were busy shooting clay pigeons on New Year's Day, your scribe took a picture of a grouse standing on the blacktop a couple of miles closer to town. Some sort of story or something there!

Johnny Michaelson and Jim Hall fish the Kitlyah pretty regularly together, Johnny has brought home a steelhead on three successive weekends, while partner gets a mere dolly; so it goes.

At least three steelhead taken from Kitlyah last weekend, all better than six pounds, water conditions about perfect and a trickle of fish running through at all times it seems.

Late parties up country had little trouble getting both cow and bull moose; Gordon Reade, Lou Gelley and Keith Elliott taking advantage of the very large number of easily reached animals in the Bulkley Valley around Smithers. The game management program is definitely showing up in a very favorable light.

Mild open weather of late has given opportunity for waterfowl hunters, Big Bay is replete with Canada geese, ask Pat Mussell et al; Lots of goldeneyes behind the Island; butterballs too, a favorite haunt of Bob Armstrong and the Princes; Rafts of sawbills (mergansers that is) to be had for the taking, and there need be no fear that they make less than good eating; just skin them out and roast in the regular manner with a couple of bacon or pork strips across the breast. Most of any unwanted flavor in ducks is usually in the skin fat, and a well seasoned herb and onion stuffing will work wonders.

All in all, we are quite fortunate for outdoor things this winter, and the deer have made a pronounced upsurge in local woods. Bruce Wilson still wakes up talking about the oversize buck which he knocked over but failed to stop at long range at Shawatlans. Better luck on the big hatrack next fall Bruce.

Jim Greer clicked for his meat quite close in, just about in sight of the Cold Storage plant, actually.

Jack Prince senior, got a 13-pound spring trolling in front of the Fairview plant a fortnight ago. Fish are smaller at this time, but diligence should get its reward any time during the coming four months. Try too spinners with an ounce of lead, or wobblers with red. Remember, to get your fishing license for 1957.

Will be happy to receive any further subscriptions towards the young folks .22 rifles, the kids go back to work at the Civic Centre on the evenings of January 8 and 9 and they would appreciate a visit from YOU.

Have you ever been at the Canadian National dock at low tide during winter? Try it some time and watch the crows fly down to water level to tear loose a mussel or two from the pilings; then they make about 30 feet altitude and drop the load to the dock where it may or may not smash open to provide a chilly morsel of food. Quite a hard way to earn a meal, especially when the omnipresent seagull swoops in to steal it if he can!

Howe Record Threatened by Beliveau But Wings Centre Near Richard Mark

By The Canadian Press

Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings' great right winger may see one of his National Hockey League records surpassed this season but right now he has a fair chance of setting another.

The record in jeopardy is Howe's one-season total-point mark of 95, set in 1952-53, and the man likely to break it is Jean Beliveau, Montreal Canadiens' star. The big centre may end the year as the only NHL player to top 100 points in a season, but if Howe continues to score in the second half of the season as he has in the first he may well beat Maurice Richard's goal-scoring mark of 50.

Howe scored the only goal New Year's eve as Wings beat Rangers 1-0 in New York and has 24 goals in 34 games. Beliveau got two goals and an assist Tuesday night as Canadiens whipped Chicago Black Hawks 6-2 in Chicago.

Wings' win put them into a one-point lead over Boston Bruins but they weren't given long to enjoy it as the Bruins got back into the lead Tuesday also at the expense of Rangers, beating them 5-3 in Boston before 10,522 fans.

Howe's goal Monday gave him a total of 47 points, good enough in most years to lead the league at this stage but Beliveau has amassed 55, in two more games than the Wings have played.

Howe's goal was made with assists from Red Kelly and Ted Lindsay, the Wings' other postwar greats.

Only 6,432 customers turned out in Chicago as Hawks went down to their 24th defeat in 36 games. Beliveau's goals were scored in the first and third periods. The others went to Henri Richard, Bert Olmstead, Dickie Moore and Claude Provost. Frank Martin and Rookie John Sleaver scored for Chicago.

JEAN BELIVEAU

GORDIE HOWE
. . . near Richard's mark.

The win left Montreal in third place, two points behind the Wings and three back of Boston.

Johnny Peirson, the 31-year-old right winger scored twice as Boston beat New York Tuesday night. Other Bruin marksmen were Real Chevrefils, who scored his 16th of the year, Fern Flaman, Leo Labine and Don McKenney. For New York, Andy Hebenton, rookie Gerry Foley and Dean Prentice beat Terry Sawchuk.

Bruins took a 1-0 lead after 80 seconds on McKenney's 40-footer and from there on were never headed. Referee Frank Udvari handed out 13 penalties, eight to Boston.

Only one game is scheduled tonight, Detroit at Toronto. Ted Kennedy, Toronto centre who retired 18 months ago may be in action for the Leafs if his bosses decide he's in condition.

Kennedy accelerated his comeback plans after centre Tod Sloan was injured in Chicago on Sunday. A Wing win would cause the NHL lead to change hands for the fifth time in as many days.
