ARE YOUR LIPS BECOMING UGLY?

The "Cupid's Bow" is Said to Be Giving Way to Thin, Hard and Straight Lips.

Poets have raved and singers have sung of the beauty of woman's mouth—the magnet which draws man into the meshes of matrimony. But, alas! women's mouths are no longer beautiful. We look in vain for the "Cupid's Bow"—the "sweet, red, splendid kissing mouth." That type is giving way to lips which are thin, hard and straight, and which, while expressing character, detract largely from the beauty of the modern woman. At any rate, that is the view expressed by several artists in an interesting symposium of opinions published in the Morning Leader recently. And artists should know, seeing that their livelihood depends on their observations of the human form and face.

"The mouth," says one artist—Mr. G. Sheridan Knowles, R. I.—"is the feature which is most rarely perfect. Many women have good eyes, or a good nose, but very few have a perfect mouth. This may be deplored, because the mouth has the greatest share in expressing character, and cannot be overlooked. My own ideal is the subtle mouth—that is to say, a mouth which expresses distinct character and is in harmony with the rest of the face."

"The Venus of Milo has comparatively thick lips, but other equally famous statues have thin ones. My own opinion is that a compromise between the two extremes is the ideal. The 'Cupid's Bow' mouth may be ideal for a child, but something more subtle is needed for a woman. There have been many conventions in lips. The Gainsborough and Reynolds convention was comparatively thin lips without any Cupid curves. The assetti convention was the other extreme—very thick lips.

One explanation offered of the fact that woman's lips are becoming less beautiful is that they are made thinner and straighter on account of the degeneration of teeth, caused by the unnatural conditions of today, and there is no doubt that lips depend upon good and regular teeth for their beauty and lose their graceful outline when the teeth degenerate.

Mr. Alfred Praga, president of the Royal Miniature Society, agrees with Mr. Knowles that one very seldom sees a perfect mouth nowadays. "My ideal," he says, "is the rosebud of 'Cupid's Bow' type, which is the only pure type of beauty. It may not show character, but that does not matter. Character is not a pure, natural thing, but is acquired, and pure beauty always ends where character begins. Unluckily, woman is developing much character now, and the result may very likely be that she will lose the beauty of her lips. "It cannot, I think, be too well understood that a beautiful mouth is at its best in repose. The present fashion of smiling and showing the teeth is deplorable.

able. From the artistic point of view, a smile is nothing but a contortion of the face, which ruins the features for the purposes of portraiture. Face muscles that should be in repose are brought into activity, and the result is by no means beautiful. The mouth is stretched across the face, the lips lose any curves they may have and the whole face suffers."

On the other hand, Mr. G. G. Kilburne, R. I., says that he has no difficulty in finding models with beautiful mouths. "I notice many perfect mouths when walking about the streets," he continues; "one sees, indeed, a great number of beautiful women in London."

"Of course, there are many types of beauty, and one type may be as beautiful as another that is widely different. Probably every artist has his own ideal, and it is difficult to say definitely which lips are the most beautiful. They must not be too thin, and they must not be thick enough to become coarse. Certainly the rosebud mouth, which is often held up as the ideal, cannot be accepted as perfect, because, as I have said, it fails to express character."—Tit-Bits.

According to the Pall Mall Gazette, Prince Arthur of Connaught will receive a signal honor in the shape of a dukedom on his return from Japan. It is probable the title, which will carry a seat in the House of Lords, will be the Duke of Kent.

The northwest grain dealers estimate the wheat crop of 1912 at 179,828,000 bushels, which is less than three million bushels more than the crop of 1911.

And 99 out of every 100 unprejudiced people will tell you THE DAILY NEWS is the home paper of Prince Rupert.

Advertisers also tell us and will tell you that results obtained from publicity carried in the columns of this paper have exceeded by far those obtained through any other newspaper published in Prince Rupert

The successful business man today is the one who advertises judiciously, who chooses the medium most generally read by citizens of a community; a business man who does not look upon an expenditure for advertising as an expense, but, on the contrary, as an investment. This type of business man you will generally find in the front ranks of his profession, turning his dollars daily and moving his goods rapidly—and all through the liberal use of newspaper publicity.

Try advertising as an investment, if only for a short time, and watch your business grow.

Let our solicitors call and explain why The News is the best medium through which you should inaugurate your initial campaign.
