SPORT CLIPPINGS

Kitty Bransfield, who took the management of the Montreal team with the understanding that he should not be held to the job more than one season, is now said to be willing to continue as team leader for the Royals, and Montreal wants him back, for the team made a great showing in the final month of the season.

Carl Zamloch, the Missoula pitcher sold to Detroit for spring delivery, is now writing sports on the Missoula Sentinel. It is a regular job he has, not just a bluff to hand out dope on the world's series or anything like that.

Now comes a denial that Arthur Devlin said he would not go to the Pacific Coast as manager of the Sacramento team. According to the latest report, Devlin said he would like nothing better than the job next year, but would not consider it this season, because he already had his plans made for the fall and early winter.

Baltimore leads the International League in fielding, with a slight margin over Toronto, but fielding alone does not win pennants.

There will be no controversy over Veau Gregg's contract for next year. He signed it before departing for his home in the Northwest.

There is a standing reward of $5,000,000 for the man who discovers a New York or Boston baseball writer who is not so prejudiced that he can give an unbiased account of the world's series.

When Paeky McFarland hooks up with Jack Britton he will find he is up against a stiffer proposition than the usual marks he has been battering up.

These heroes of the "battle of the Century" are taking awful chances in playing regularly. Suppose some of them had their fingers smashed. How could they write up their thrilling stories of the world's series?

Bob Groom, the elongated pitcher who used to hurl 'em over for the Beavers, recently signed up his contract for next year with the Washington team and was given a substantial boost in salary without asking for it in consideration of his sterling work on the slab this year.

Albert Kerr should be a sensation in the Pacific Coast League. Until he became dissatisfied with his environment here there was none better than the same lightning tempered "Dubbie."

Edward Lyell Fox says that John McGraw is the greatest general baseball or any other sport has ever known.

So far, save at Bolton, McTavish, the old Falkirk player, has failed to produce his best form with Newcastle United. He seems too anxious to excel. If he would play his ordinary game he should get along splendidly with Rutherford.

Sunderland are still waiting for that victory. Everybody is asking: "What's the matter with the team?" and it's a natural enough question when a team of Sunderland's reputation only receives two points out of a possible twelve.

Manchester City are certainly going strong. Out of five games not a single point has been lost, and their opponents have only been able to score on one occasion. This is a direct change from the misfortune of last season.

London's First League clubs will have to buckle in earnest. All three have so far cut a sorry figure. The Southern League can afford to laugh a bit just now.

BAT IS MIGHTIER THAN THE PEN

By Grantland Rice.

The Red Sox received for winning the world's series, a week's work, about $4,000 each.

Goldsmith got ten bones, they say, For writing the "Deserted Village";

Doc Homer had to beg his way, When there was no free lunch to pillage;

Burns was a very seldom feeder, Who only dined well now and then;

There's nothing to it, gentle reader,

The bat is mightier than the pen.

Not all of Byron's stock was par, Old Dante crabbed and he had reasons.

He never owned a touring car, Although he led the league for seasons.

Shelley was broke, and Keats, the leader Of finished verse, often borrowed "ten";

There's nothing to it, gentle reader,

The bat is mightier than the pen.

All of us know Shakespeare's verse,

How fast he was; how keen and shifty;

Yet I will bet the largest purse, That William split was shy eight-fifty.

Why even I, though 'a daily breeder

Of high brow dope, oft beg a yen—

Take it from me—believe me—reader,

The bat is mightier than the pen.

L. Crippen, managing director of the Crippen Boneless Herring Co., which has just been incorporated, left on the Prince Rupert yesterday morning on a short business visit to Vancouver and Victoria.

G. B. Hull, Dominion government engineer, was a passenger south this morning on the Prince Rupert.

OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL HAS GROWN INTO LARGE BUSINESS

The growth of the football league has been phenomenal. From the starting point of 12 clubs with rules written on a sheet of notepaper, and the games attracting an average of 50,000 spectators per week, the league now comprises 40 clubs; the rules cover fourteen pages, and probably well on for 100,000 people watch the games each week. The bulk of the clubs are big financial undertakings. Some own their own playing fields, while others enjoy fairly long leases.

The capital expenditure of the clubs amounts to hundreds of thousands of pounds, whilst their annual turnover approximates £300,000. The forty clubs employ over 4,000 professional players, and find employment each week for an army of trainers, groundsmen, gatemens, and checkers. We have also secretaries, assistant secretaries, and team managers. The railway companies run excursions for almost every match.

Think of hotel and travelling expenses, the payment for printing, posting and advertising, players' outfits, ground and other repairs, and medical expenses, and it will be seen at once what a big business football is. Every league match in every league centre brings hundreds, in some cases thousands of people into the town who have to be catered for. What a grand thing for trade!

The league's development has been gradual. The number of clubs has been steadily increased, and though there is perhaps no immediate prospect of a third division, it is sure to come.

You Are on the Bench

YOU—the Public—are the judge. On your good opinion and your good word depends the success of the advertised article. For no amount of advertising will induce you to buy a second time what you do not like. No advertising will offset the bad effect of a dissatisfied buyer.

That is why advertisers must and do maintain the quality of their goods.

Advertisers realize that to turn their outlay for advertising into profit they must give good value.

They are not looking for one-time sales. First sales, in most cases, would not pay for the advertising.

To be successful, they must make steady customers. So, quality is being put in to hold the trade that advertising produces.

Thus, to be sure of quality, one naturally turns to goods that are advertised. And isn't it only reasonable?

No manufacturer can afford to advertise for long an inferior article. From the moment the advertising begins, the quality must either be kept uniform or improved—to go back means ruin.

The day is passing when you ask for a pint of pickles. You name the brand.

You don't ask for Rolled Oats. You name the brand you prefer.

The unknown article may be good, but you are not so sure of it as you are of the advertised article, which bears the seal of quality, —a well known maker's trade name.

TO MANUFACTURERS

You who make good goods and do not advertise—show your confidence in your product. Advertise it.

Let the public know that you stand back of your goods to maintain their high quality.

Make your trade name the recognized standard in your line.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any good advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 303 Lumsden Building. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write, if interested.
