J. Lorne McLaren, accompanied by Mrs. McLaren, returned this morning on the Prince Rupert from a short visit to Seattle.

Ninety-Five Fights

When Paaky McFarland stepped into the ring with Tommy Kilbane it was his ninety-fifth professional engagement with the gloves. McFarland has a record which probably surpasses any made in the ring. In his ninety-five bouts he has never been defeated. He has appeared in several no-decision bouts and also has been in about half a dozen draw affairs, his most notable ones being with Freddie Welsh, but on all other occasions he has either knocked out his opponent or received the victory on points. McFarland was born in Chicago on November 1st, 1888, and is an Irish-American. His first ring bout was in 1901, when he knocked out Pete West in two rounds.

Miss Maud Palmer of Port Stanley, Ont., is dangerously near death as a result of being struck on the head with an axe by Tom Dunn, an aged railroader. Miss Palmer's father and Dunn had quarrelled over some ties.

"What did you just tell that man?"
"That this was no blacksmith shop."
"What did he want to do?"
"File a mortgage."

Good Performance

One of the features of the amateur night performance at the Westholme Opera House last evening, was the delightful singing and dancing of the winsome little tot, Florrie Gray, the youngest of that talented family who are so well known to the citizens of Prince Rupert. With wonderful nerve and abandon, that is not to be met with in the stage appearance of many a grown up performer, she kept the delighted audience smiling and laughing every moment she was before the footlights. Other good turns were C. V. Evitt, in comic songs, and Gibson and Stowell, in a double gag, in which the former is always to be depended upon to convulse the audience. The moving pictures, both of the serious and comic variety, were excellent, whilst to many the orchestra alone proves an attraction that would take them to the comfortable little theatre every evening of the week.
