THE CENTENARY OF PEACE.

Much has been said and written of a too controversial character concerning the commemoration of the various battles of the war of 1812-14 and also concerning the celebration of one hundred years of peace.

There is no need for the celebrants to quarrel. There have been celebrations of Canadian victories and of American victories. Perhaps it would have been better if we could have joined in honoring the brave men who fell on both sides without regard to who lost and who won. It is not victory, but effort and the doing of duty that deserve to be honored.

All this, however, belongs to the past. The coming celebrations of peace relate to the present and the future. We have had a century of peace. We ought to inquire into the causes of this condition, and then to consider how peace may grow into friendship and active co-operation; and how the example of Canada and the United States may benefit the world. Our celebration of peace ought to be more than a show. It ought to point the way to fresh achievements.

Labor Day will soon be here. It is the same day in Canada and all over the United States. Why not emphasize on that day the great truth that the interests of labor in Canada and in the United States are identical; that the Canadian workman is interested in the improvement of the condition of the workman in the United States, and that the American workman has the same interest in the conditions of labor in Canada? Labor is constructive. War is destructive. They are natural enemies.

During the month of September there will also be yet another excellent occasion for emphasizing the good will between the two nations. The fall fairs and expositions will soon be held in Canada and the United States. They are exhibitions of the arts of peace, of a kind of progress which war checks and hinders. Let this fact be emphasized wherever the fruits of the earth and the inventions of man are displayed.

No doubt the management of the Prince Rupert exhibition will contrive in some way to draw attention to the good international relations prevailing on this continent. Here, on the Pacific coast, more than in most other parts of Canada, Canadians and Americans are brought into frequent contact with each other and it is well that everything should be done which may tend to cement their friendships.

All of the official attacks upon women's dress seemed to be based upon the idea of protecting the morals of men. Would it not be better to first find the men with morals to be corrupted?

It is particularly appropriate that it was a Chicago woman who was first to vote with her foot. Chicago has long been famous for the feet of its female citizens.

TRIBUTE TO LORD KITCHENER FROM THE PEOPLE OF INDIA

LEADING PUBLIC MEN IN THE GREAT DEPENDENCY UNITE IN ERECTING COLOSSAL BRONZE STATUE OF THE FAMOUS GENERAL.

A colossal bronze statue of Lord Kitchener, weighing five tons, is about to be sent from the United Kingdom to Calcutta for erection on the Maidan, the famous riverside promenade in that city. A replica of the statue will be sent to Khartoum.

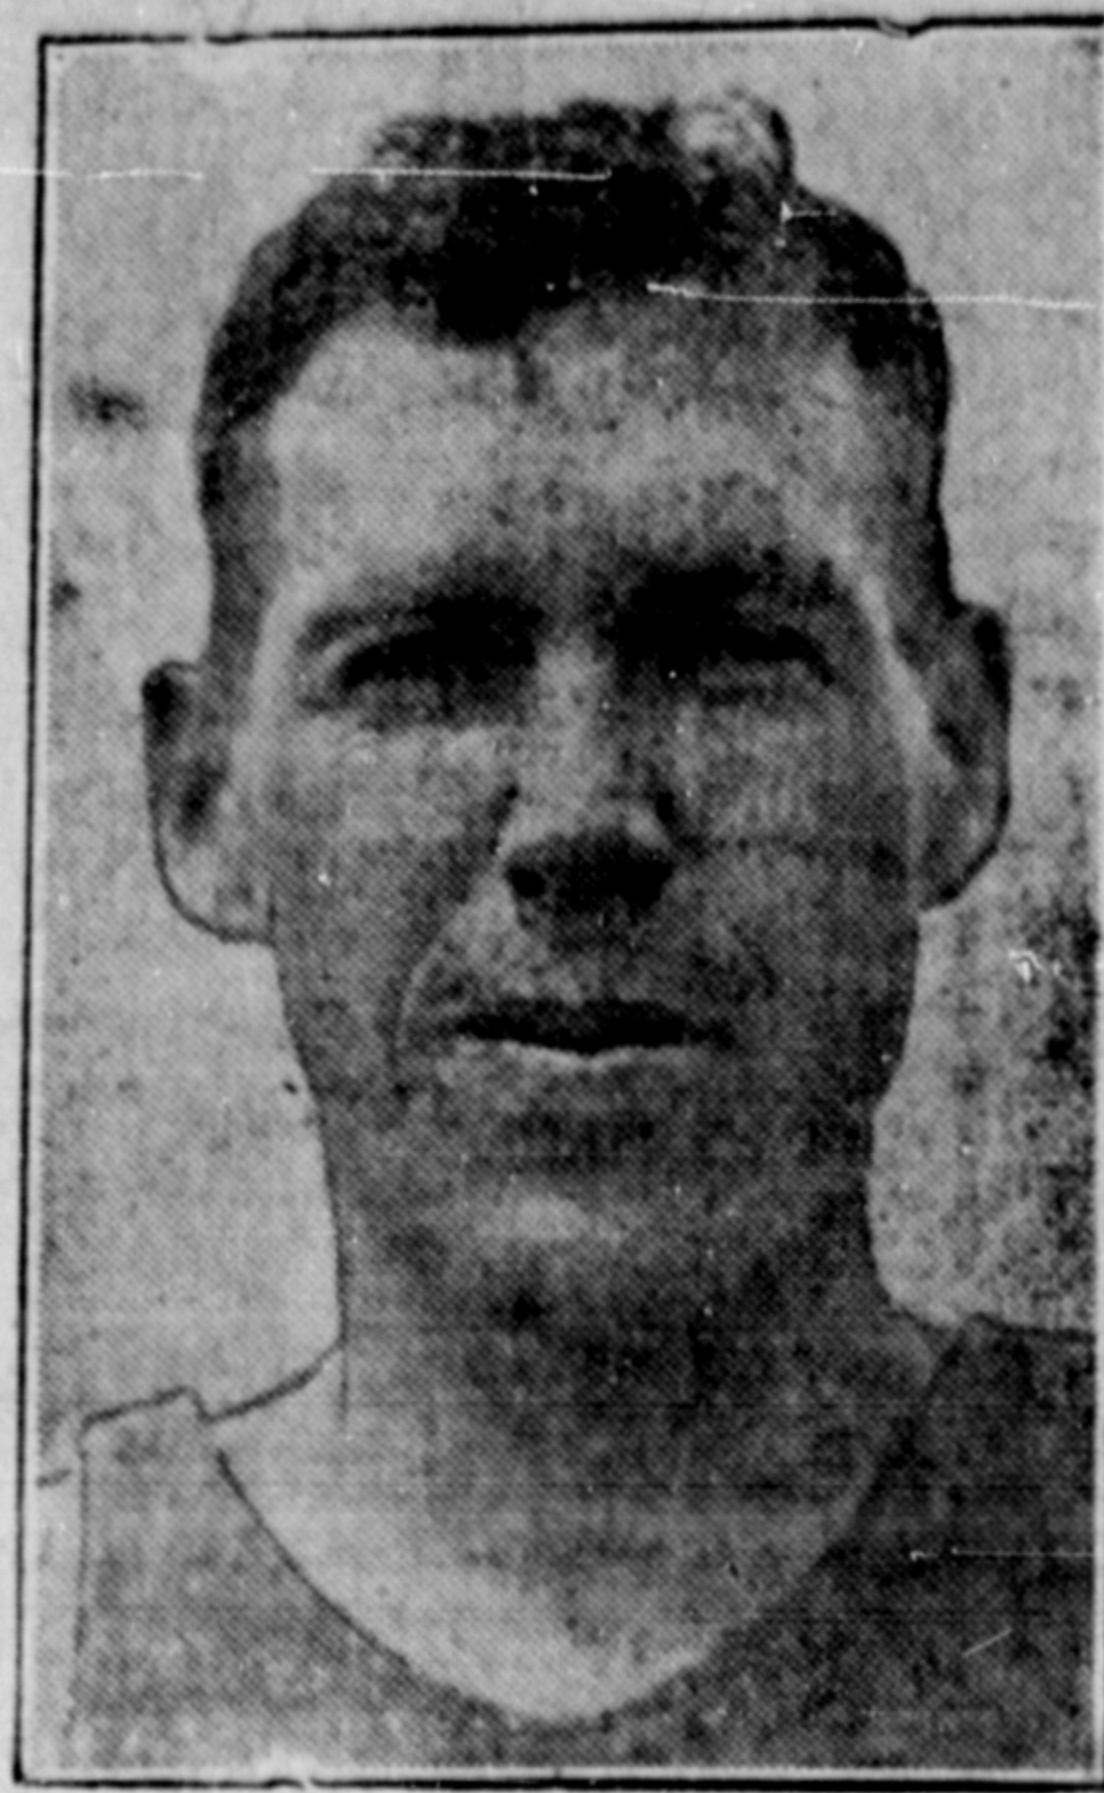

The figure destined for Calcutta has been cast from metal provided by old cannon sent from India for the purpose, while the replica is being cast from cartridge cases picked up on the field of Omdurman.

The scheme for the Calcutta statue originated with the leading public men in India, who desired that there should be a permanent memorial to the service which the field marshal rendered to India during the seven years when he was commander-in-chief. So great is the esteem in which Lord Kitchener is held there that there was little difficulty in raising sufficient money from the people of India.

The choice of design was left to a committee, and fell upon that submitted by Mr. Sydney March, at the request of Messrs. Elkington & Co. of Regent street. The work represents Lord Kitchener as a field marshal, wearing his decorations and mounted on his famous horse Democritus.

There are four panels on the pedestal of the statue, depicting appropriate Indian incidents, including the review of Indian troops by the King when Prince of Wales.

Lord Kitchener, who arrived in England a few weeks ago, spent a week end at his Kentish residence, and then paid a visit to the foreign office, where he had a long conference with Sir Edward Grey. His lordship was accompanied by his military private secretary. Scarcely stories cabled to the United States of Lord Kitchener ignoring the foreign office are consequently untrue.

ONE HOUR LATE

Globe Trotter Was Delayed at Vancouver.

Spokane, Aug. 4.—Speeding eastward on the last lap of his 21,000 mile race around the world against time, John Henry Mears, of the New York Evening Sun, passed through Spokane, this morning on the Northern Pacific North Coast Limited, practically on schedule, and, barring unforeseen delays, will arrive at the Sun office Wednesday night at 10:10, thirty-five days from starting.

The train was an hour late into Spokane, having been held in Seattle awaiting his arrival from Vancouver, B. C., but officials gave the order for a clear track east, and it is expected the lost time will be made up between here and Paradise, Montana.

Diplomas are also to be given for the best collection of concentrates and smelter products.

Word has been received by the fair management that district exhibits will be contributed by Atlin, Stewart, Kitseles, Hazelton and Queen Charlotte Islands, and keen rivalry already exists between the several sections as to who will land the district prize. Arrangements were made yesterday for the lease of a building during the fair to be used exclusively for the mineral displays, and this feature will appeal to thousands of visitors, both at home and on the outside.

CENSORSHIP DEMANDED

Purity League Objects to Much of Current Fiction.

New York, Aug. 4.—The "too free" discussion of sex problems in current fiction has aroused the National Christian League for the promotion of purity, and that organization has appealed to Postmaster General Burleson to establish a censorship over magazines.

Specific complaints have been filed against articles appearing in publications as follows:

"The Tiger," by Witter Bynner, in the May Forum and characterized by the purity league as "garbage"; "The Woman Who Tried to Be Good," by Edna Ferber, in the Saturday Evening Post of June 14, and "In the House of the Living Death," by C. Hilton-Turbey, which appeared in another weekly magazine on June 28.

RIOT IN CAWNPORE

Police and Mob Engage in Fatal Conflict.

Calcutta, Aug. 4.—The demolition of a portion of a mosque at Cawnpore for street improvements, which had caused indignation meetings to be held in many parts of India and Burmah, led to serious rioting at Cawnpore yesterday.

A procession of natives carrying black flags visited the mosque and began replacing the bricks of the partly demolished edifice. An attempt to disperse the gathering resulted in a conflict with the police, who fired a volley into the crowd, killing thirteen persons and wounding thirty.

One policeman was shot and forty others were slightly injured.
