Local and Personal

The steamer Spokane will be from the south on Sunday.

The Princess Royal arrived here this afternoon. She brings mail from the south.

Joe Filion left this morning for a trip to Montreal to visit old friends. He crosses via Northern Pacific.

The steamer Vadso is due tonight with coal for Rogers & Black. She will leave Sunday evening for Massett on a special charter with the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Mrs. W. W. Wrathall and children and Miss Wrathall of Hazelton arrived in the city last evening. They will reside at the corner of Thompson Street and Sixth Avenue.

Hot ashes set fire to the boiler building on the McLeod and Muse contract for the G. T. P. excavation about three o'clock this morning. The fire boys put the blaze out in short order. Damage was slight.

Eight drunks was the catch in the police net over new years. They were a sore-headed crew when they appeared before the P. M. this morning. Each was charged $5, some with costs and some without.

Constable Owen left this morning for New Westminster with two prisoners: Shannon, guilty of giving whiskey to Indians, and Auriol, guilty of robbery.

Mrs. J. W. Allan received Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Remon, sister of Mr. Morley Donaldson, the vice-president of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The guests included Mrs. Du Vernet, Mrs. Rix, Mrs. Cambie, Mrs. Angus Stewart, Mrs. R. O. Jennings, Mrs. Jenns, and Mrs. P. I. Palmer.

Big Schools Herring

The first big schools of herring came into the harbor this morning and the waters are teeming with fish. The sea-gulls, which have been hanging around up in the city waiting their arrival, are all busy on the harbor waters today. The herring seine boats will probably go into commission immediately.

In the Letter Box

through trains may not be launched, official trains will surely come, bringing prominent visitors. Just a simple repetition of one of two-thirds of our comical council meetings of 1911 would find them screaming back into the eastern world and we would smell to heaven.

Two years of Newton in our council chamber should have been enough to satisfy the souls of his most intimate friends.

Who among us will fail to remember the long rapid speeches, the glare of the lime-light, until night after night the hour of twelve rang forth and—nothing doing, nothing accomplished; wrangling and quarrelling, arbitrary and unparliamentary discussions, threats of calling in an officer, and "Sit down, Smith, sit down!"—disrupted enterprises and war, war, always war—the council chamber filled with citizens swarming to see the fun.

How could our little city, still in its swaddling clothes, struggle into healthy life with such a cancer festering in its vitals?

Whatever its well known advantages and however fostered it may be, narrow-minded paragon and poisoned blood will get its goat.

And now, in summing up, voters of Prince Rupert, in all truth and candor I want you to confidently believe me when I say that I have no personal feeling in the premises beyond a desire for good government and prosperity in the city where I have come to be at home.

At this point it goes without saying that many a man will say "This man is working for Pattullo," and I have no hesitancy in replying, "I am." I am working for Pattullo. Working for a man whom I know to be a bright, quick-witted and genial gentleman, one who has always been known to be wary, discreet and conscientious in his choice of assistants; one who has turned the well known chaos of City Hall into a well-oiled machine which has been in perfect order now for months.

Personally I have known every move this man has made since first I met him on the trail of '98 as Major Walsh's secretary. So well have I known him that I defy any man to bring forth one act in his intercourse with his fellow men worthy of discredit.

Many a man, mouthing some bitter wrong on the streets of Dawson, has been referred to Pattullo because of his big-hearted honesty. All who talked with him believed him; all who dealt with him trusted him. He was always spoken of up there as a man who would not lend himself to trickery and conspiracy.

Starting his career in bank work, he has studied finance ever since, and has adapted himself to the feel the handling and the disbursements of great sums of money in the north.

So far as absorption goes Mr. Newton is without doubt as honest as the great wall of his friends claims he is—does that alone warrant the placing of such a man in charge of the affairs of our city at this most crucial moment of its existence? Mere honesty may be found on the steppes of Russia, where the serf is as honest as the proverbial ox.

That might warrant the mere placing of funds in his hands for safe-keeping, but does it warrant us in asking him to spend it for us? What does Sam Newton know of the economical disbursement of great sums of money? Take the case of "Manson against Newton," where a few lines of vicious tongue work cost him several thousands of dollars. So much for his ability.

One more word regarding his disposition and I shall have done.

Before Prince Rupert became a chartered city Sam Newton may have been as free from malice, envy, jealousy and other sins of this vale of tears as a monk of the middle ages; he may become in future years the embodiment of that which goes to make that noblest work of the Creator—an honest man, but if all the contemptible, lowdown, unreliable, underhanded, tricking things which he has said and done since our people first elected him to office could be percolated through the carcass of a dead beast, a hungry vulture would curl his beak proudly in the air and soar away.

NEWS' EFFICIENCY

The Daily News has been attracting to its mechanical staff workmen of exceptionally high standing, until today there is not a more efficient staff on the coast. All that anyone who doubts this has to do is to notice the stunning cuts and ads. that the News turns out and the style and finish that is to be found in their job work. Indeed when a job of special merit is desired—something that is real different—people invariably turn to the News, and several of those have been done in the past month.

The latest acquisition to the staff is Mr. Arthur E. Robb. Mr. Robb is a linotype man, and as an evidence of his standing it is sufficient to add that he has been president of his union in Vancouver, and was chosen as a delegate to the International Typographical Union in Nashville, Tenn., last August.

A recent issue of the Linotype Bulletin has this to say of Mr. Robb: "Mr. Robb is evidently a linotype man, as indicated by his card on which his name appeared in the form of an assembled line of linotype head letter matrices. It was an exceptionally neat piece of printing, the matrices being in gold bronze and embossed, and it attracted considerable attention. The cards were greatly in demand by delegates and visitors."
