GYPSIES ACCUSED OF CLEVERLY SWINDLING TORONTO DOCTORS

How a band of travelling fortune-tellers, professing to be driving across Canada from coast to coast, got money out of prominent Toronto physicians, was told at the police court in that city. The gypsies, on receiving charitable treatment, offered to tell the doctor's fortune. They claimed it was impossible to fulfil the fortune-telling unless the doctors let them place a roll of the doctor's money under his chin. When this was accomplished, they went through the usual tactics, at the same time drawing several bills from the roll. The missing money was not noticed natil after they had left the home of the mor can keep a church treasurer from becoming sour and cynical. we are told by the writer, who says, in comparing the giving habits of young people that "girls and women are more conscientious than boys and men, and give more generously of their income."

The excuses offered by the "forgetful" members when their memory is refreshed also is a cause of wonderment to this. church treasurer, who remarks: "He has been told that 'back envelopes' can not be filled because the owners of them have bought a piano on payments, and all other financial obligations must be held in abeyance until the piano is paid for. He has even been told by a prospective bride that her weekly offering of ten cents a week would be discontinued in view of the expense of her approaching nuptials, but that she would seek to get her husband-to-be to double his subscription as soon as they were married, and that would 'even things up.' He has had
