the opposition to the C. N. R. policy at Ottawa is purely a party affair. Of course there is no issue that could be advocated by any party in which flaws could not be picked by a virile opposition. The present opposition would be remiss in their duty to the Canadian people if they did not attack the weak points of that agreement, and from the reports received so far it would seem that they are doing their duty. The remark of Sir Wilfrid is striking and characteristic when he says that if we are to be partners with the C. N. R. we should have some say in its control. There is nobody who says that nothing should be done. The road has been put in a bad way by injudicious promoters but the credit of Canada is also at stake and something must be done. It would be an unheard of thing for a financially embarrassed individual to secure a loan on the terms offered to the C. N. R. Only forty per cent. of the capitalization is put up as security. A private individual must put up all his assets for an advance of forty per cent. and then he is very lucky to get that. Those promoters who have shown themselves either dishonest or incompetent in the past are still left in charge of the road. A private individual would have found himself in the hands of a receiver. This is what should have been done with the C. N. R., and forever prevent a repetition of the bold mendacity they have exhibited in the last few years.

The independent stand taken by Mr. R. B. Bennet, of Calgary, on the C. N. R. deal is worthy of a strong man. It is

It must be rather disap pointing to the South American peace envoys to find them selves suddenly losing the centre of the stage and the luster of admiring eyes. The Constitutionalists in Mexico who refused to join in the peace conference and who a little later were denied admission, have now jumped into the lime light. They have taken Tampico, one of the important Mexican Eastern ports. With the profits make further advances. It would not be surprising to see a section of Huerta's followers join the Constitutionalists and make their victory com- BROAD LINE plete. Although the Unites States and Canada have been neighbors Remember, too, that when you in the far north for nearly half a century, the exact dividing line between their possessions especially as to the northern portion; was, previous to this survey, indefinite and conflicting. Many disputes arising, the two governments decided finally, through their commissions, that an absolute survey, clearly established. and marked for all time should be made along the one hundred and forty-first meridian, from the Mount St. Elias Alps, on the Pacific, to the Arctic ocean, a distance of approximately 600 miles.

The United States surveying party consisted of from sixty to eighty men each season since the work was undertaken. Chief Engineer Riggs, himself a college man,, selected his aids from the hardiest classes-cowboys, forest rangers, prospectors, timber cruisers and frontiersmen, with a liberal sprinkling of engineers. New expeditions were organized each spring, although many of the men who started at the beginning have remained in the service up to the present time. It was the custom, too, to leave

At less important points the monument is smaller, being designated as a cone, cast of the same metal and requiring only 1,500 pounds of concrete for the base. There are approximately 200 of these monuments along the 600 miles of boundary. The work of conveying the heavy materials for their construction, mostly on! pack animals, sometimes on the shoulders of the men themselves, was very slow and laborious.
