DRIVING NEW WORK ON GREAT OHIO GROUP

Manager Trimble Says Company Develop Chalcophyllite Ore at Great Depth

R. P. Trimble, Portland, Ore., was a passenger on the Prince George south this morning. He had just returned from a trip to New Hazelton where he had been inspecting the Great Ohio group on Rocher de Boule Mountain.
The long tunnel which has been driven on the No. 1 vein ran into ore last week and as a result an underground survey was made to determine the advisability of cross cutting from the No. 1 to the main vein, or the Great Ohio upon which there are two ore showings on the surface, one six feet wide and the other four feet wide. These outcroppings are several feet apart and it is the conviction of Mr. Trimble that they are continuous underground.
It has been decided to run the cross cut to the Great Ohio vein, a distance of some seventy-five feet. This, it is estimated, will cut the ore body at a depth of four hundred and fifty feet, the greatest depth yet obtained on any property in the camp.

Mr. Trimble informed The News man that if the ore looks as good at the four hundred and fifty foot level as he expects, his company will immediately start development at great depth. The first work will be another tunnel to tap the ore at the thousand foot level. In the meantime work will be continued on the upper workings.
Just before coming north, Mr. Trimble completed the organization of the Juniper Creek Mines Company, of which he is the secretary and general manager. He has associated with him men high up in the General Electric Company.

This company has mapped out a campaign of development on the Great Ohio Group which is intended should make it a continuous shipper and a large shipper before the present year is out.

JAP FISHERMAN COLLECTED DAMAGES

Haysport Launch Collided With Fishing Boat While Running Away From Scout

"The old days in the fishing when might was right appear to be returning," remarked an old-timer on the Skeena River yesterday. "In the good old days the cannery bosses were a law unto themselves and today that is about all the law there is on the Skeena."

He then related very dramatically a little run-in which occurred Monday, in which one nifty Jap put it over three white men who were out buying fish.

The cannerymen have a scout boat chasing the gasoline launch belonging to the Haysport Gold Storage Company to prevent the latter buying fish from the cannery boats. Detective Matheson is in charge of the cannery private police boat.

On Monday he was chasing the Haysport launch and the latter in trying to get away collided with a Cassiar Jap's fishing boat, doing some damage. The Jap fisherman demanded ten dollars to make repairs and the launchmen refused to settle. With that the Jap threw a line over the launch and boarded her with a knife in his teeth. The three men on the launch crowded into the wheel house. A Jap with a knife did not look tempting to them.

Having sole possession of the deck the Jap picked up the set of scales which were lying on the deck and put them in his own boat. He then informed the launchmen they would find the scales at Cassiar cannery any time they wanted to settle for the damage they had done to his boat. With that the Jap cast off and the launch went back to Haysport.

PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT WILL BE SET UP IN ULSTER

CARSON HAS MADE CALL FOR FIRST MEETING—NO INTENTION OF SEPARATION—JUST WANT TO HOLD ULSTER FOR THE EMPIRE

(Special to The Daily News)
Belfast, July 10.—The first meeting of the Ulster provisional government will be called today at the request of Sir Edward Carson. According to Capt. Craig the result of the meeting will have important bearing on the Irish situation, but he declared it was not the intention of the Ulsterites whatever happens to set up a parliament for themselves. Ulster claimed the right merely to hold the province in trust for the constitution in order that Ulster may continue as an integral portion of the British Empire.
