GERMAN ATTACK WEAKENING AISNE BATTLE IS NEAR OVER

(Special to The Daily News.)
Paris, Sept. 24.—The force of the German drive in the west has been weakened, say reports. The German Prussian guards are unable to maintain the pressure of the British and are giving ground. It is believed here that the battle cannot last much longer as the German center must retire if its right is pushed back much farther.

The Germans are making a fierce drive in Woevre, northeast of Verdun and aim to cut off the Allies' army operating near Nancy. The Allies there are resisting desperately and so far have repulsed all the attacks with heavy losses.

The Germans are endeavoring to pierce the line of forts linking Verdun and Toul.

UNFORTUNATE OLD-TIMER OPENS CIGAR STAND

Carl Anderson, who lost his eyesight about eighteen months ago through a premature blast on the waterfront, has opened up a cigar stand on Second Avenue at the corner of Seventh Street. Since losing his eyesight he visited his old home in Norway but having been so long away he could not content himself there and returned to Prince Rupert a few months ago. The site for his cigar stand is furnished free by Peter Black, of the Central Hotel, who allows him the use of the corner so long as he does not require it. Mr. Anderson is an old-timer here and should receive the support of his fellow-citizens.

PARISIAN PRESS COMMENTS GERMANS BESIEGED IN AISNE

(Special to The Daily News.)
London, Sept. 24.—The Paris press, commenting on the struggle along the Aisne, is convinced that a German defeat is due. The Germans are desperate because of their inability to pursue their original plans, which were in the form of a definite prearranged scheme.

The Petit Parisien says that the Germans are in the position of a besieged force, doubtless making sorties but involuntarily resigned to accept the defensive. History teaches that the defender, under such circumstances, invariably succumbs.

MINOR ATTACKS BETWEEN FLEETS

London, Sept. 24.—The German protected cruiser Koenigsberg caught the British light cruiser Pegasus, a few days ago, overhauling her machinery in Zanzibar harbor and attacked and completely disabled her.

More Modern Guns.
The German cruiser, while of the same class as the British, had more modern guns, which outranged those of her antagonist. The British loss is given as twenty-five killed and eighty wounded.

The German cruiser Emden captured six British merchant steamers in the Bay of Bengal in six days and sank five of them. The Emden reappeared at Rangoon, possibly having taken part in other exploits as yet not known.

On the British side of the score was the sinking of a German cruiser, supposed to have been the Cape Trafalgar or the Berlin, by the former Cunard liner Carmania, familiar to transatlantic travelers, also armed as a cruiser, on September 14, in waters which the Admiralty describes as "off the east coast of South America." The British loss was small—nine killed and twenty-six wounded.

Survivors Rescued.
The German loss is unknown, but the survivors were rescued. Apparently the Carmania steamed away without stopping to learn particulars of her victim's identity or casualties.
