ORDER OF HIBERNIANS SPLIT OVER LOYALTY

As a Result of Statements Made by American Branch Canadians Will Withdraw.

Victoria, Jan. 9.—One result of the war has been the initiation of a movement for the separation of the Canadian divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians from the A. O. H. of America for loyal reasons. British Columbia took the lead in this and Nova Scotia has followed suit. Ontario and Manitoba are considering the matter and are likely to do the same. There is no doubt that the other provinces will also take this step and that the A. O. H. of Canada will be organized as an independent body during the course of the year. It may now be said to be in existence in the form of a temporary board for British Columbia, of which John Hart, Victoria, is chairman; J. J. Dutton, Vancouver, vice chairman, and W. H. Harris, Victoria, secretary.

For some years it has been customary for the A. O. H. of America, at its annual convention, to pass a stock resolution declaring that nothing short of absolute separation for Ireland would satisfy it. Many Canadian delegates have refused to attend the conventions because of this, and for the past couple of years, through pressure brought to bear from this country, the putting of this resolution has been dropped temporarily.

Since the war broke out references have been made in The Hibernian, the official organ of the order, which were considered to be anti-British, and in the October issue the national president denounced John Redmond for his attitude and his encouragement of Irishmen to enlist. As soon as this came to the notice of the members in British Columbia it caused a storm, and Mr. Hart at once resigned the presidency for the province and sent a very strong letter of protest to the national president. With Mr. Dutton, Mr. Harris, and Joshua Smith, president of the Victoria division, he took the matter up with the members in this province and entered into correspondence with the other provincial presidents in the Dominion, with the result mentioned.

Members of the order here say it would be an injustice to the majority of the members of the A. O. H. across the line to put them down as being pro-German because of the remarks of some of their leaders, but as Irishmen in British Columbia they feel that they could not remain affiliated with any organization the loyalty of whose membership is in doubt at a time when the Empire requires the active support and sympathy of every son, and every daughter, of the Green Isle. The trouble with some of the Irish in the States is that they want to cherish the memories and feelings which existed in Ireland a century ago, forgetting that both the English and the Irish people have been changing materially and are every year coming closer together, and that the English of today have granted the aspirations of the Irish people for a national parliament.

It may be stated that the A. O. H. of Ireland is independent of the American organization, and thousands of its members are fighting in the ranks in France or are preparing to do so as members of Kitchener's new army. All of them that are eligible are training for foreign service or for home defence, and are encouraged to do so by their leaders, secular and clerical. The Irishmen in this city and province are as one with them in this.

While it is too early to say what may be done after the convention of the British Columbia members to be held next June, it is not unlikely that the Dominion organization will eventually seek affiliation with the order in the United Kingdom. Meanwhile, the officers named and a committee of management of ten, five from Vancouver Island and five from the Mainland, are handling the affairs of the order here. A few evenings ago Victoria Division No. 1, A. O. H. of Canada, reorganized, with Joshua Smith as president, and Vancouver Division No. 2 has done the same with J. J. Dutton as president. In Ontario a committee of which C. J. Foy is chairman is dealing with the matter.

THE DAWN OF DAY.

Each parting day sends after
Another glorious morn
To cheer each heart that sadness
Leaves naked and forlorn.
Each setting sun's the cradle
Of another happy day
And the glory of his rising
Doth turn despair away.

So even though his setting
May shadow us with night
There always comes his rising
To gladden us with light.
And thus each closing hour,
As like the setting sun,
Brings after it another,
More happily begun.

So why be filled with sorrow?
And why be grieved with pain?
'Tis true the sun is setting;
It soon shall rise again.
And why then let the shadow
Of this night oppress our heart?
When morn shall join together
What gloom has rent apart.

And why look on the shadow
Of another of life's years?
Will not the next bring with it
A solace for our tears?
And if we see with sorrow
A spot on that that's done,
Let morning be the dawning
Of a better day begun.

And then let the beginning
Of this other year of life
Be stamped with resolution
To conquer in the strife.
We need a good beginning,
But yet that is not all;
The moon may see us falter,
We may at twilight fail.

But perseverance wins the fight.
Our efforts we must bend
To carry through the good begun
Unto the very end.
Then we shall not be saddened
As sinks the sun to rest;
There comes one day eternal dawn
With light eternal best.

The above stanzas were written by W. V. Mackay, son of J. R. Mackay, of this city, in commemoration of a recent birthday of his father. This young man, who has also had considerable training comes naturally by his literary tastes. He is a great-grandson of Dr. Charles Mackay, an author and writer of considerable proportions.

Marie Corelli was an adopted child of Dr. Mackay's, and his son Eric is the hero, Lord Eric, of Marie Corelli's "Story of Two Worlds."

The young man referred to above has written several pieces that have been favorably received in literary circles.
