As a matter of fact Prince Rupert should export raspberries instead of importing them. Anyone with a couple of city lots "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." planted to the berries could feed half the city with fruit every morning for breakfast. We draw attention to this because it is a local industry that could be developed by people with small capital in a small way.

JUST ONE EXAMPLE

An example of how costs of government might be cut without putting Canadians out of a job is shown in an editorial in the Victoria Times:

"At one time British Columbia House in London was a On Everything-When You costly liability for the province. But in itself it never was expected to be a profit-maker. It was not an easy thing to sell office accommodation when the best part of the ground floor fronting on Regent Street was occupied solely by provincial displays of various kinds. Under the late administration, however, this valuable space was converted into private business premises and since that time it has been yielding important revenue until the total cost of maintenance was brought down to a little more than $5000.

"We are told the Kidd report recommends sale of the London building, the reduction of the staff to two or three, and the renting of quarters in Canada House, which fronts on the southwest corner of Trafalgar Square and Cockspur Street. With the reported recommendation of the committee comes the announcement, moreover, that the cost of maintaining British Columbia House last year amounted to $26,500 owing to additional advertising. This is an increase over the 1929-1930 fiscal year of more than $20,000—a substantial amount in a period demanding rigid economies.

"In recent years excellent work has been done by British Columbia House and at a maintenance cost of between $5,000 and $6,000 a year—or even more than that—it could be considered an excellent annual investment from the advertising point of view alone. It is not necessary, of course, to go into the reasons for the substitution of Mr. Burden for Mr. Pauline; but the increased cost of running the institution furnishes a contrast which evidently has not escaped the Kidd commission. None the less, it would be false OLD DUTCH CLEANSEReconomy to dispose of the building and bury a few officials in Canada House."

HAZELTON FAREWELL

HAZELTON, Sept. 2:-A large gathering of friends assembled on the lower balcony of the Hazelton Hospital last Tuesday evening to say farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson and family before leaving for New Metlakatla, Alaska. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tomlinson are old residents of the district and it is with deep regret that the community parts with them. Mr. Tomlinson goes to New Metlakatla to take charge of the Indian Mission there, established many years ago by the late Father Duncan.

Dr. H. C. Wrinch, medical superintendent of the hospital, spoke for the staff of which Mr. Tomlinson was a member and presented the Tomlinsons with a silver dish as a token of appreciation from their fellow workers.

Mr. Cox followed and spoke for; the friends of the town of Hazelton. reviewing the work that both Mr and Mrs. Tomlinson had done for the community.
