Secretary of State George C. MINISTERS.

Marshall returns to his desk today to take a leading role in to the United States Congress ASSISIANIS for a four-year European recovery program that may cost up to $20,000,000.

The program, which Marshall and top administration officials are: expect to turn out by next week, is expected to be laid before congressional committees on November 10 with argument that it offers a "reasonable" chance of saving Europe from economic disaster and preventing a vast westward expansion of Russian communism.

Marshall will later leave for London and the Big Four foreign ministers' conference on the German peace treaty.

superintendent of the British Columbia district, Canadian National Railways, has been appointed manager of the company for British Columbia, according to announcement today by W. R. Devenish, vice-president, western region. Mr. Devenish points out that the increasing company activities on the Pacific Coast make it necessary for a change in organization in order to meet the growing demands of railway and steamship services.

"This appointment is made," states Mr. Devenish, "in order to have an official representing the company with a greater measure of authority so that all business matters contingent upon transportation, rail or water, can be more satisfactorily handled in the business interests of British Columbia and Britain and other trading powers the Pacific Coast." to tariff concessions covering

"General industrial activity in between 76 and 86 percent of British Columbia has increased to such an extent that the Canadian National Railways is setting up a larger organization to handle the situation.
