READY TO CO-OPERATE ON RECONSTRUCTION--PATTULLO

Pulp and Paper Manufacturing Seen as Prince Rupert's Hope In Timbering; Fishermen Lauded

With billions of feet of suitable timber in the immediate vicinity, a transcontinental railway ready to haul the product to the markets of the continent and an unsurpassed port for the handling of waterborne shipments to all parts of the world, Prince Rupert enjoys an enviable position for the establishment of a pulp and paper industry, M. P. McCaffery declared in speaking before the Prince Rupert Gyro Club at luncheon yesterday on the subject of "The Lumber Business." While there were certain handicaps as far as the sawmilling business here was concerned, Mr. McCaffery asserted that no place was more advantageously situated than Prince Rupert as far as being a pulp and paper manufacturing centre was concerned.

Mr. McCaffery, who gave a candid and interesting talk in typically conversational style, referred to a variety of matters—local, provincial, national and international as well as social and economic.

In regard to British Columbia's lumber business, the speaker mentioned how this had been adversely affected by the United States tariff against Canadian lumber. Then had come the Imperial Conference at Ottawa at which Great Britain had agreed to protect Canadian lumber in the British market against the competition of the Russian product. This had cheered the industry in this country but now a treaty was in progress of negotiation between Great Britain and Russia as a result of which the Ottawa agreement appeared to be endangered. It was a delicate diplomatic problem. As far as the future

Would Eliminate Taxes

The Liberal leader also intimated that, if his party were returned at the forthcoming provincial election, he would do away with the one percent tax as it affects small salaries and also the "nuisance taxes" such as meal tax and fishing licences. Mr. Pattullo insisted that, "if you are going to have responsible government, you must have party government." The only criticism against the Liberal party, he declared, seemed to be that party government had failed.

The Liberal leader criticized the Tolmie government for not appointing a royal commission on municipal affairs long ago and promised to revamp the entire educational system of the province. He cited the case of Prince Rupert where the city commissioner had ruled that children over sixteen must pay $5 monthly for schooling, resulting in a severe drop in attendance. This was class legislation and the Liberals would not stand for it.

The island was formerly used as a military prison.

CAMPAIGN ECHOES

OPEN LETTER TO "PROVINCE"

Extract from "Province" editorial October 10th, 1933: "We are often asked what we have against Mr. Pattullo. The fact is we have so little against Mr. Pattullo and we think he is such a good man personally that we sincerely hope he will be elected. But not at the head of a Liberal government. The whole difficulty is that he is, under the present circumstances, bound hand and foot to the party organization which reflects exactly and fully the wishes of the party machine and nothing else. You don't hear Mr. Pattullo frankly admitting the graft and selfishness and the looting of the public treasury that went on during the last Liberal regime."

Note the words, "looting of the public treasury."

Now let us carry you back to an editorial of the same "Province" newspaper dated August 13th, 1927, after John Oliver's death, and practically at the end of the last Liberal regime above referred to. It reads:

"The Oliver Government will leave a respectable record of legislative achievement. Most of its social legislation was not merely well intended, but it has made life a little easier for a great many poor people in this province. Widow's pensions have been a good thing. We are all hoping that Old Age Pensions will be a good thing. On the whole, the finances of British Columbia have been capably and honestly administered by the Oliver Government. There has been a real development of the province by virtue of a comprehensive road building policy."

Now note the words, "capably and honestly administered."

Will the "Province" newspaper please reconcile these two conflicting statements? Did the Liberal government loot the public treasury, or did it administer finances capably and honestly?

Was the "Province" telling the truth in 1927 or is it telling us the truth today?

Why persist in such mischievous lies at a time when the foundations of our democratic institutions are in danger and when our people are so much in need of sane advice and leadership?
