NATIONAL EMPLOYMENT WORK

Now that the federal government is apparently considering the possibility of putting the unemployed men of the country to work on national undertakings and paying them real wages, we think their attention should again be drawn to the desirability of building a railway outlet to the westward from the Peace River country.

With the two railways co-operating in various parts of the country, they might well co-operate in connection with this line. Possibly an arrangement might be made for the C. P. R. to use this section of the line into Prince Rupert in order that they may help to make the road pay its way and also relieve the congestion in the Vancouver yards.

The western outlet for the Peace is one of the most pressing problems of the day as it would enable the farmers of that huge region to market their produce at a profit instead of a loss. Also the line would pass through a country that has great possibilities. It would tap the Omineca properties of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company which are now being developed and which will need an outlet. These considerations should have weight with the Bennett government in influencing its decision as to what public works to initiate to care for the unemployed.

SLEEPING SICKNESS

Newspapers in Canada and England have been discussing the question of sleeping sickness and the statement is made that many cases have followed closely on vaccination. Some papers have charged that members of the medical profession have been concealing the truth in regard to the close relationship between sleeping sickness and vaccination. A few years ago questions were asked in the House of Commons in England and even at that time is was shown that a number of cases of sleeping sickness had followed vaccination. The medical associations, it is claimed, know that there is grave danger of sleeping sickness following vaccination but have continued vaccination:

We do not think the members of the medical associations would mislead the people in regard to this subject but undoubtedly those who always have objected to vaccination will find their hands strengthened by the fear that the operation may be followed by sleeping sickness. It seems that many members of the medical profession have of recent years changed their minds in regard to vaccination.
