BEAR HAD GOOD TIME YESTERDAY

old time bear hunter. Miss Helen Fox did a little terpsichorean work to the accompaniment of a mild dose of hysterics. Meanwhile the bear stood on the shore and looked in wonder at the boat, then turned and went into the bush.

Here are the facts of all this: George H. Collins and M. J. Sandel of Kelly-Douglas and Co., invited Miss May Roberts and her company yesterday afternoon to a little cruise around the cold storage plant and up Tuck's Inlet on the Phippen.

After inspecting the cold storage plant the boat turned into a passage that runs off the Inlet. About a quarter of a mile up this passage somebody spied a fair sized black bear near the water's edge. Then there was excitement. The men wanted to pose as heroes, the ladies implored them not to kill the poor thing. The captain hurried below and got his gun. Every man aboard had a shot at that bear. The bullets went everywhere but into the bear's hide.

Then the party decided to go hunting for the animal. The ladies went too. The party chased around for some time but all the time taking good care to go the opposite direction they believed the bear had gone.

Their trail is marked with remnants of silk stockings and hairpins.

AT THE THEATRE

"The Judge and the Girl" Drew Packed House on Saturday

Through the front doors, through the stage, door, through every fire exit, through windows, through every crevice loud, unharmed peals of hilarious laughter got out of the Empress Theatre on Saturday night when May Roberts and her company scored a triumph in the care chasing comedy "The Judge and the Girl."

Bob Holland, (Bobbie Williamson) just from college calls at the house of his friend Alfred Rumpus (L. Victor Gallard) to find him much married. Mrs. Rumpus (Miss May Roberts) is a lady from Chermansy, she says, and tries to make Alfred's life heavenly by continual henpecking. Rumpus has to put up with it because he married her solely to dodge some discourteous creditors.

Bob Holland is surprised to find his sweetheart Matilda (Miss Lillian St. John) is the daughter of Mrs. Rumpus and meets with difficulties in his wooing owing to the fact that Mrs. Rumpus had promised the hand of her daughter to Judge Robert Skinniboy (Ira Robertson) a wheezy, "rheumatik" old fossil of 61 summers. The old judge proposes to Matilda, a vision of youth and beauty in pink, and she, thinking the old fossil is speaking for the Robert she really loves consents unknowingly to become the bride of Skinniboy.

Mr. Rumpus all this time of course is in league with Bob his young friend. Rumpus finally asserts his authority like Pettruchio in "The Taming of the Shrew" and things get straightened out in the end.

Ira Robertson as the old judge with the gouty left foot proved that he is really a first class comedian. The versatility of Miss Roberts was demonstrated in the difficult part she played. She was exceptionally good and Mr. Victor Gallard was very successful as the young henpecked husband pining for freedom from his misfortune.

A little dynamo of sweetness and vivacity Miss St. John acted the part of the girl in love and difficulties splendidly. She looked very charming and pretty in her pink dress and earned a lot of applause by her clever dancing.

Bobbie Williamson as a young lover was excellent. Leonard Carey as a flunkey deserves very creditable mention.
