EUROPEAN SITUATION

The flare-up in Europe caused by the assassination of ning until the conclusion of the President Dolfuss of Austria and the mild sensation caused by the accession of Chancellor Hitler to the presidency of Germany following his recent summary execution of Nazi rebels seem to be settling down. Austria has accepted Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany as ambassador and every day that passes without any disturbing force becoming active makes war less likely.

Germany has not forgotten the lessons of twenty years ago and Chancellor Hitler has declared against war. No country that was involved in the Great War will be willing to fight again without very good reason. It will be another ten or twenty years before that war will be sufficiently forgotten.

LAST OF HINDENBURG

Field Marshal von Hindenburg is dead and buried. One Phee's rink won 22 to 11 over Angus of the greatest leaders of a great people, the late president of Germany, will be pointed to as one of the national heroes a result, resuming exclusive leaderof the Fatherland. As a military leader he was a source of strength and as a political leader he stepped into the tween F. A. Rogers and D. G. Borbreach at a critical time and enabled the country to carry land rinks outstanding, the league on. He died in harness as he would have wished to do. | standing to date is as follows:

STIR UP TROUBLE

Hon. H. H. Stevens suggests that the fuss over the suppression of his brain child was simply an attempt to stir up trouble. He is wrong. The suppression of a document of that kind would have been "news" at any time but the suppression by the premier of a document prepared by the minister of trade and commerce is enough to cause something of a sensation. Add to this the fact that the document was simply a summary of the evidence of a public parliamentary hearing with comments thereon and the sensation is bound to be considerable. When it is further! considered that the criticisms contained in the document stigmatize the actions and methods of some of the big monied powers to which Mr. Bennett belongs, it is easy to understand why the whole country should be talking about! the incident and prophesying its effect on the next general Hanson, M. P. for Skeena, was election. Mr. Stevens would have been one of the first to largely instrumental in having be stirred by such an incident if it had occurred in the brought about the 10:30 nightly opposition camp.
