"THE DEVIL'S HORSE"

Just off the main road from London to Cambridge, between Ware and a straggling hamlet called Standon Green End. the middle of a meadow, says stands a remarkable monuknown as the Balloon Stone. Under a hinged metal flap is a bronze plate bearing an inscription chronicling the first balloon ascent. Lunardi's ascent created a tremendous sensation, all London turning out to witness his departure into the upper atmosphere. His sole companions dog, a cat, and a pigeon. When he was nearing the earth in the field where the Balloon Stone stands, five laborers declined to take hold of his mooring ropes, and swearing they would have nothing to do with the "devil's horse," took to their heels. But for the plucky conduct of a young servant girl from an adjoining farm-house, who seized the rope and summoned assistance, the pioneer balloonist would not have effected a landing.

ALL THE DIFFERENCE

"Patience, my dear, patience!" reproved Mr. Bounce complacently. "I'm quite sure Jim didn't mean to upset his cup of tea, and it will be easy to get out a fresh table-cloth. Accidents will happen, you know, in regulated families-mind your glass, Willie-and it's no good crying over- Careful, Willie! I always think-

"Great Scott!" he shouted. "There goes Willie's milk all over my trousers-and a new pair, too! Get a cloth, somebody! I'm dripping! Heavens! a man can't sit down at his own table nowadays, it seems, without being peppered from his children's plates, and bespattered from his children's cups. Just look at these trousers. Mary! Ruined! Ah, don't tell me he didn't do it on purpose! I'll teach him to behave himself-

"Willie," he roared, as he left the room, "follow me into the study!"

THE WAY OF A REFORMER

He was one of those sad-faced men who delight in becoming railwaycarriage bores, and when he saw a happy-looking stranger smoking contentedly near by he felt compelled to ask a few questions. "Sir," he began, "will you allow your boy to smoke cigarettes when he grows up?" "I have never given the question a moment's thought," replied the stran-The sad-faced man sighed.

"And," he went on faintly, "I suppose you have never thought about stopping his drinking?" "I never have," admitted the man. The sad-faced man positively gasped. "Can it be true," he muttered, "that there are such monsters living; such hardened, callous-" "But I think you ought to know," interrupted the stranger, "that I have been a confirmed bachelor all my life."

IT WAS CURIOUS

"Come in." The door opened to admit a shabbylooking individual, the shine on whise coat would have done credit to the hardest-working shoeblack. "Are you the gentleman," he began, who found a purse and advertised the fact in the papers to-day?" "It contained money?"

"Yes, it contained a very large sum money.' "You mentioned that the owner could recover the purse by giving you description of it?" "That is so. But you will have to give an accurate account of the purse, its contents, and how you came to lose

"I haven't lost a purse." "Eh? Then why do you come here called out of curiosity to see and make these inquiries?" what a man looks like who finds s large sum of money and advertises it in the papers instead of having a good time. Good morning, sir!"

GOOD IDEA

Jones was at the theatre, and behind him sat a lady with a child on her lap, which was crying unceasingly. Unable to stand it any longer, Jones turned smilingly to the lady and ask-"Has that infant of yours been christened yet, ma'am?"

"No, sir," replied the lady. "If I were you I would call it 'Good Idea,," said Jones. "And why 'Good Idea'?" said the lady indignantly "Because," said Jones, "it should be carried out." It was Jones who had to be carried out.

BARS "OFFICE BOY" LAW-YERS

Chicago Judge Says He is Tired of Hearing Motions from Attorney's Clerks.

Half a dozen budding lawyers lost several pounds of dignity when Judge Landis, of Chicago, waved them aside and announced that he was through with listening to "office boys" present motions. Several clerks in law offices, not yet admitted to the bar, asked for continuance of cases.

"I am tired of giving up the time of this court to office boys who bon't know that they are talking about," said the judge. "It is not fair. There is not another judge in town that is imposed on by the lawyers as I am, and I am going to put an end to it.

"If the practice can't be stopped any other way, I shall rule that none but a qualified lawyer can present any matter to this court."

F. G. Dawson, Returning Officer at the recent election, is very busy today making the final count of the votes. The official result will be announced shortly.
