SPORT

The managers of Abe Attell, the featherweight champion, and Johnny Kilbane have announced that they have posted forfeits binding the two featherweights to meet at 122 pounds, before the club offering the largest purse, for the world's championship

According to a morning paper, Billy Bell, the Belfast Belcher, alleged foot runner and boxer, is matched to race Fred Meadows. It is to laugh. Once Bell had a vision of whipping Abe Attell. Now he thinks he can lower Meadows's colors. Bell couldn't make a fat man sweat going up hill. Will some one please wake him up

Marshal Ney King, one of the stars of the National League in the days of its infancy, has just died at Troy, N. Y., aged 62. King was famous as a hitter and centre fielder. His first engagement was with the Chicago Nationals in 1871.

Milburn Saylor, who recently won over "Battling" Nelson in a ten-round bout in Boston, got a popular decision over Ray Bronson in a ten-round contest at Indianapolis the other night. After the fifth round Saylor had the better of the fight all along. In the ninth Saylor delivered a number of hard right swings and staggered Bronson against the ropes. Bronson had a shade in the fighting in the fourth and fifth rounds and managed to break even in the first and third.

"Jack" Johnson is going back fast as a pugilist—so fast that he has practically decided to quit the ring for ever, knowing that if he fights a good man he will be beaten.

This statement was made by Marty Cutler, who has been Johnson's sparring partner abroad, on his arrival in New York recently from England. "Johnson has picked up weight so rapidly that I don't believe he ever can get in shape to fight a good man again," said Cutler. "He knows it himself, and would never have made that match with Bombardier Wells had he not thought that the Bombardier was a decidedly inferior man."

"Jack did some hard training for the Wells match. Wells might have beaten him. Johnson figured that with his boxing skill he could catch Wells early in the go with a knockout punch. If he failed in this his wind would have gone back on him and he would have been in serious trouble."

"The champion has just naturally slowed up. Try as he would he could not show anywhere near the speed he used to have. His footwork, usually so good, is slow and clumsy and his punches are not rapid and accurate."

Pugilistic followers on this side know that Johnson was going a fast pace, but the news from his sparring partner that he is "all in" really comes as a surprise.

BLIND CLEANING

Renovation Tip That Makes Thin Goods New

This is a good way to clean buff or cream-colored window blinds: Begin by taking off any trimmings there may be, washing them in hot soapy water, then rinsing them in borax water, and pressing them on the wrong side with a hot iron. Next bake some flour in a dish in the oven; lay the blind flat on the table, dust it with a clean cloth, then dip a piece of cloth in the flour, and rub the blind evenly with it. Take fresh flour and flannel when soiled. Polish the blind with a clean, soft cloth, sew on the trimmings again and replace it in the window. Green blinds that have faded may be made to look almost like new by brushing them over with some over with some linseed oil.

THE SILLY SEASON

Journalistic Invention to While away Dull Times in Newspaperdom

The "silly season" has been an institution in London journalism for many years. It always begun as soon as parliament rose for the autumn recess, and it lasted until people got back to town in October and November, and it furnished innocent joy to folk who like to see their names in print, no matter how the publicity is obtained. The rising of parliament, of course, released a lot of space in the London papers, which usually published practically unabridged reports of its proceedings, and as that pace had to be filled somehow, the editors started a discussion on some "silly" topic and invited readers to write their views on it. It was customary to ask some such leader of thought as Hall Caine, or Marie Corelli, or John Strange Winter to start off with a column article on a carefully chosen silly topic and if the letters didn't come freely enough the office staff was called on to supply them. Provocative letters over such signatures as "Father of Seven," "Watchdog," and so on, written by the sporting editor and the religious reporter usually started the stream flowing in and in a few days the empty space was filled.

"Should Girls be Spanked?" was a silly season topic which achieved a record success a couple of years ago. "Should Lovers Kiss?" in another paper ran it a close second, while "Are Sermons Too Long?" in one of the more serious journals drew thousands of letters from country ministers and earnest young curates. "Is Mixed Bathing Immoral?" was also a popular subject. "Do We Marry Too Old?" brought thousands of letters to the paper which hit on this happy idea and its success probably inspired a rival to propound the query, "Ought We to Marry at All?"

Associated with the silly season letter writing were the sea serpent and the big gooseberry. The sea serpent always timed its arrival on the English coast

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY

The English Method of Dealing Out Supplies by the Week

In the matter of small savings and watchfulness of expenditure the English housewife is ahead. For example, the English housekeeper deals out to her servants the week's allowance of sugar, rice, flour coffee and all other household provisions that are kept in quantity, and requires an account of it all to be rendered, the think having been brought to so fine a point that she knows the exact amount of each article requisite for her family, allowing so much to each individual and that quantity being sufficient, two ounces of tea, for instance, being regarded as a week's supply for each single individual, one-half pound of sugar, three and one-half and one-fourth for a man—facts which the housekeeper probably learned from her mother before her—knowing, moreover, the greater variety of the simpler kinds required.

All of these stores she sets down in her housekeeping book as she gives them out, and she does not fail on the next dispensing day to consult her dates and if anything be left over in the cook's hands not accounted for to subtract that from the amount to be newly issued. And in England servants expect this. So far from being indignant with it they would feel as if there were no guiding hand behind them if left undone and they given their head in an overflowing storeroom, as servants are with us. In fact, there is no saving which the housewife across the water considers too small to practice or as beneath her dignity.

QUEENLY QUEENS

Where Her Majesty is Taller Than Her Husband

With two exceptions the queens of all the European countries are said to be taller than their husbands. Queen Helen is more than a head taller than the King of Italy. Queen Victoria is more than half a head taller than Alfonso of Spain. The German Empress is a trifle taller than the Kaiser, and for that reason always sits when their photographs are taken together. King George of England is shorter than Queen Mary. The two exceptions are the Queen of Norway and the new Queen of the Belgians.
