DAILY EDITION. WEDNESDAY, JAN. 3

MR. MOBLEY'S RETIREMENT.

It is a matter for sincere regret that after preparing to make the necessary financial sacrifice Mr. Frank Mobley has felt obliged to withdraw his name from nomination for Mayor. The cause for regret is the greater because his objections are so well founded. It would be a mistake for himself or any other man to enter upon a position of authority without the necessary support to enable him to realise the program of reforms he had set out to secure.

The tragedy that stalks in the wake of the average American municipality is apparent in smaller degree here in Prince Rupert. Our ablest men are engrossed in their private affairs, and the corporate business cannot secure their services. The men of marked administrative ability plead that they cannot afford to neglect their own affairs to enter public life. The civic administration is left to take its chance. Very often the chance lies only between a fool and a knave.

Under these circumstances it is often the habit to scold the business men and accuse them of a lack of public spirit. This is hardly fair. Charity begins at home. William Pitt saved Europe and ran himself into the bankruptcy courts. But Pitt was not a married man, and then Pitt was Pitt. Cobden built up a great weaving business before he entered Parliament to repeal the Corn laws. He repealed the Corn laws, but lost his business and had to accept a public purse from the people of England. The civic corporation cannot expect to secure the service of first-class administrators for a salary less than a decent bellhop's tips, and it will be several years before we have a leisured class of retired business men who will be available to offer their abilities to the city for the sake of serving the public.

It is superfluous here to point the lesson of the one way to guarantee expert business administration to the city, or to express regrets that the one candidate whose business experience and municipal experience made him especially desirable at this juncture, has been obliged for lack of proper aldermanic support to decline the honor offered him.

A Mayor may be useful in initiating policies. He can become effective at blocking policies. But he cannot pass legislation or even vote on measures except on those rare occasions when he is called upon to give a casting vote. Under the circumstances Mr. Mobley is probably well advised in deciding that if Alderman Newton's followers are to form the Council the best person to preside over them is Alderman Newton himself.

SPORT!

A Grand Walker.

George Goulding, the Canadian heel and toe artist, set a new record for the United States walkers by his recent performance at New York. His wonderful wobble won, and the American, whose record was being smashed and who acted as one of the judges, said that Goulding was a perfectly fair walker. It seems that the only fault that can be seriously found with the phenomenal walker from Toronto is that he goes too fast to give competitors even a chance.

New Chinese Peril.

Vancouver and Victoria Chinese have organized soccer football clubs and there is every prospect of a series of matches shortly for the Chinese championship of Brttish Columbia. According to the Victoria Colonist, Mr. J. Wong has organized a fast team in the Capital City, and he has written to their Calgary countrymen suggesting a series of games.

Jack Johnson Retires.

In a published article in a Paris paper Jack Johnson, the heavyweight pugilist, reiterates his resolution to retire from the ring. "You can announce my definite retirement," said the fighter. "I never again will enter the ring, even if I find myself working for $10 a week and my board."
