TRYING TO RUIN CANADA.

The announcement made yesterday that the Federal Government will try and secure freer trade relations with the West Indies is certain proof that Mr. Borden and his Cabinet are bent upon ruining Canada, lowering the price of wages and handing away our natural resources. If we allow the goods of the West Indies which we want to come in unhindered and allow the West Indies to purchase from us unhindered the good things that they want, then there is nothing ahead for Canada but ruin. No nation can expect to bow the knee to Baal in this manner and achieve national greatness.

But this is not the worst. If once we permit ourselves to sell to the people of the West Indies, for good coin of the realm, the various things that we want to sell and that they want to buy it is almost certain that the next step will be annexation. Our statesmen are no match for the clever and astute politicians in the West Indian Legislatures, one of whom at any moment may slip through a bill providing for the annexation of Canada.

What is to be done to meet the national menace of fuller and freer trade? At the time of writing The News has received no further despatches, but it may safely be presumed that Col. Sam Hughes and the other leading patriots of our country are preparing to make some militant speeches. Mr. Arthur Hawkes, alias John V. Borne, the gentleman of alleged Swedish origin and Canadian education who engineered the appeal to the British-born in a similar crisis in our national history some months ago, should be recalled from his jaunt to the Orient to engineer similar campaigns on a more extended scale. The birth might be divided into years, so that we could all be labelled like old port with the year of our vintage. These again could be subdivided into the Monday-born, Tuesday-born, Saturday evening-born, etc., classes.

A fund should be provided by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to educate the people to the dangers of extending the scope of our national customers. Some lurid posters, some even more lurid speeches and a plentiful supply of Union Jacks for waving purposes would be found effective.

The customs returns for the month of December showed that we taxed our trade to the extent of $7,333,349. Any effort to reduce this taxation must be combated, because it is by taxing ourselves that we become rich.

After having gone into power by educating the public up to the dangers of opening up freer trade relations with our 92,000,000 neighbors, it is a strange madness that now actuates Mr. Borden and his Cabinet to endeavor to secure free trade relations with our equatorial brothers in the Caribbean Sea.

A NIGHT-SWIM AMONG SHARKS

STORY OF SIR PETER LUMSDEN'S GREAT SWIMMING FEAT IS REVIVED—STORIES OF WHAT PLUCKY MEN AND WOMEN HAVE ACCOMPLISHED IN WATER.

Burgess' recent record when he swam the English Channel, wonderful performance though it was, is not by any means the most wonderful performance that man has proved himself capable of, even out of his natural element.

Among the more unusual swims on record was that accomplished in the China Sea in January, 1860, by Lieutenant Lumsden, now General Sir Peter Stark Lumsden, G. C. B.

This young officer was sailing a small boat in Talienwan Bay when a gale sprang up and capsized it. Darkness had fallen, the low shore was many miles away and invisible, and a heavy, choppy sea was running. Moreover, the bay was infested by large man-eating sharks.

To an ordinary individual the situation would have seemed wholly desperate. But Lieutenant Lumsden was no ordinary individual. He was known as the finest swimmer in the army and one of its best all-round athletes. And he made up his mind to fight for his life to the last gasp.

First, he divested himself, one by one, of all superfluous articles of clothing, retaining, however, his flannel shirt, which he found an assistance rather than a hindrance, as it helped to support him in the water when floating. For the first few hours he held fast to a presentation gold watch, but presently finding that that even its small weight sufficed to handicap him somewhat, he let it go.

For eight solid hours he swam steadily on in pitch darkness, buffeted continually by heavy cross seas, not knowing for certain whether he was progressing toward the shore or away from it. At length he heard the sound of breakers, and putting forth his last ounce of strength, he gained the land just as dawn was breaking. Then he swooned away, and when he awoke to consciousness the sun was high in the heavens.

What a Plucky Girl Did.

Another remarkable feat of the kind was performed by a young lady passenger on the Queensland liner Quetta, which foundered in Torres Straits in the summer of 1890. Though sucked down by the sinking steamer, this plucky girl, on coming to the surface, boldly struck out for the shore, nearly twenty miles distant.

Sixteen hours later she was seen and rescued by a party of pearl fishers. She was then still swimming strongly, and the shore was only about three miles away.

Sixteen hours is not, however, a record as regards actual time in the water even for a woman. In May, 1880, Agnes Beckwith swam for thirty continuous hours, or over seven hours longer than the time occupied by Burgess in swimming the channel. It need hardly be said, however, that the conditions governing the two exploits were wholly dissimilar.

Swam Thirty-seven Miles.

Another, and perhaps even more remarkable, swim of a similar kind was performed many years ago in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado River by a man named Jergensen.

Owing to the snapping of a rope used as a temporary bridge he was thrown into the rapids at the top entrance to the gorge and actually floated and swam a distance of thirty-seven miles down the river before rescued. Much of the journey was through broken water and amid whirlpools in which no boat could have lived.

WANTS ARMISTICE EXTENDED

Chinese Premier Is Not Yet Ready to Settle Terms of Peace.

Peking, Jan. 6.—Yua Shi Kai has made a request for the extension of the armistice to January 18. Unless this is granted by the rebels fighting will be resumed on Saturday. The rebels are prepared to march on Peking with 30,000 men.

Voters, Attention.

For a good, progressive administration of the affairs of the city vote for J. H. Hilditch for mayor and be safe.
