"KISMET" WONDERFUL PICTURE OF THE EAST
Film Story at Westholme Tonight... has Otis Skinner in Leading Role.
A Magic City: a city of silver and golden domes, of mosques and minarets gleaming in sunlight, sunset and moonlight; bazaars swarming with life and dizzo with color; palaces and harems straight from the Arab of imagination, and dungeons as ch as childhood bending over the "Arabian Nights" never pictured; these are some of the scenes pictured in the film story of "Kismet" at the Westholme Theatre tonight with Otis Skinner, the famous actor, in the leading role.
Over three hundred craftsmen labored day and night and wrought a modern miracle. Two months from the day the first nail was driven, the first shovel of sand upturned, there stood ready for the director, "Bagdad," complete in every detail, a new record in motion picture production.
The accomplishment of this enormous task was possible however only through the efficiency of the various departments employed. Little shacks to house the workmen were built right on the studio grounds. There were day and night shifts, and no man left the "lot" until the last board was nailed and the last brick laid. "Kismet," aside from the beauty of its story, and its sterling star, will find a niche for itself in the hall of fame by reason of its wonder of construction, if for nothing else.

Sport Chat
The friendly rivalry between Great Britain and the United States in the various lines of sport is constantly growing greater and with this competition the internationalization of games is taking place. Football, until a few years ago practically unknown in the States, is rapidly gaining popularity and the Americans are taking well to the game but baseball, the American game, does not seem to have taken much of a hold in England or Scotland as yet, just as the British game of cricket seems to have remained in the Old Country.
