MANY INJURED BY RUNAWAY FLYING-MACHINE

SEATTLE AEROPLANE ASTRAY DEALS DEATH AND INJURY

Un-Manageable Machine-Bird Plunges Into Crowd of Spectators Cutting a Swath of Horror---Many Struck Down and Hundreds Trampled Under Foot---Man's Face Gashed Clean Off by Propellor Blade---List of Injured

(Special to Daily News.)

Seattle, May 30.—Death in shocking shape, horror and frantic demoralization of fear plunged into the midst of the crowd at the Seattle aviation meet last night when the aeroplane driven by Aviator J. Cliff Turpin swooped in unmanageable condition heading at a low level through a section of the spectators.

Scramble for Life.

Without more than a second's warning the mishap took place, and in a flash of time the peril was imminent. Immediately there was a frantic dash for safety on the part of the crowd nearest the point for which the uncontrollable machine was rushing with furiously whirling engine and propellor.

Trampled Under Foot.

In the struggle for life men and women were trampled underfoot, but to the very fact that they were thrown to the ground several people owe their lives and escape from awful injury today.

Struck down by the outstretching wings of the plane, many fell groaning and shrieking in pain, for even the lighter frame work driven at full speed dealt serious hurts. Bruises and cuts with broken limbs were the majority of the injuries.

Gashed by Propellor.

Most fearful injuries were inflicted, however, by the whirling blades of the aeroplane's propellor, from the menace of which men dashed in agony of fear, having caught but a glimpse of the hideous havoc it had already done. One man fell dead, gashed in the face by the propellor blade, and a boy sank unconscious with a fractured skull. The aviator himself was hurled from his seat after vainly struggling to regain control of his apparatus. Then as the buzzing machinery jerked itself silent the official reaching the scene began the work of rescue.

Hurried to Hospital.

Ambulances were already on the spot, and doctors were in attendance. The injured were rushed with all speed to hospitals. While many were seriously hurt, a great number had got off with lighter injuries, merely bruises and cuts. These were able to get home themselves. The number but must have been over a hundred. It was impossible to get a complete list of all who had been struck by the planes or hurt in the scramble for safety.

Face Cut Clean Off.

The man who was killed has been identified at the morgue as George Quinby, aged 25, a civil engineer, whose home is in Galesburg, Ill. Identification was almost impossible, as the entire face had been cut off by the propellor of the aeroplane. Not until a friend recognized his ring and laundry marks on his clothing did his identity become known. Quinby was also a wireless operator and just returned from Alaska on the steamship Bertha, on which he served for one round trip.

List of Injured.

The list of injured includes: Raymond Chapman, ten years old, fractured skull; probably fatal.

Thomas Chapman, Seattle.
Mrs. S. C. Hoover, Seattle.
Lester Johnson, Seattle.
Mrs. E. R. Lang, Seattle.
Arthur Steendhal, Seattle.
John Wall, Everett.
Mrs. F. H. Wilhelm, Tacoma.
S. C. Williams, Seattle.

Many others suffered slight bruises and cuts, but were able to go home unattended.

J. Cliff Turpin, the unfortunate aviator, was badly bruised but managed to escape serious injury. The coroner's office has instructed the police to hold Turpin pending investigation.

The steamer Inlander will connect for passengers and freight with tomorrow's train at Van Arsdol. The water having fallen in the river, there is every probability that the regular schedule will be able to be carried out from now on. When this can be depended upon it will be the greatest convenience to the travelling public.

YOUNG SETTLER MET DEATH IN THE KITSUMKALUM LAKE

Left in Row Boat to Bring Back Provisions for a Friend---Caught by Squalls in the Darkness and Drowned When Boat Capsized---Search for Body Futile---Was a German Named Gabler and Only Twenty-Four Years Old

Settlers in the Kitsumkalum Lake district have again had the grim realities of pioneer hardship and hazard brought home to them. On Friday night last week M. Gabler, a settler of German nationality, and only 24 years of age, was drowned during a storm on the lake. His body has not yet been recovered and there is little likelihood that it will ever be found.

Went for Supplies.

Gabler, who owned a row boat, had arranged with Mr. Gabhardt, who is also a settler there, that he would cross to the other side of the lake to secure and bring over a supply of provisions waiting there. He started in ample time and good daylight, and should have been back at least before darkness fell.

After prolonged waiting, however, he did not appear, and unable to do anything to search for him without a boat, Mr. Gabhardt retired to his cabin for the night.

Boat Had Capsized.

The night was wild and squally and the lake was swept by sharp gusts which furrowed its surface and lashed up the spray. Gabhardt grew exceedingly anxious for the safety of his friend, and as soon as day dawned set off on a quest for him. After musing around the lakeside for some distance his worst fears were realized by the discovery of Gabler's boat upturned drifting ashore with the wind.

Search for Body.

Further search showed that beyond doubt young Gabler had met with death by drowning when his boat capsized in the squalls of the previous night. There was no trace of him in any likely spot where he might have sheltered on reaching shore. Search has been made as far as possible for his body, but there is little chance of its being recovered as the currents are strong and eddying in the part of the lake where the tragedy took place and the corpse may have been swept far out of possible reach.

Deceased was exceedingly popular, a young, enterprising settler making good. His death is keenly regretted and it is felt by the settlers generally that the need for better roads and trails in the whole district is largely responsible for the risks run by settlers in fetching in their supplies.

John Mended.

The Grand Trunk Pacific steamer Prince John, which arrived at Esquimalt from Prince Rupert on Saturday night to undergo repairs, was placed in dry dock today. The steamer will return north about Saturday to resume her run to the Queen Charlotte Islands. She damaged but two of her plates and three floor plates, and the work of replacing these will be rushed with all possible speed.—Vancouver World, May 27th.

EARL GREY'S RIFLES HIGHLY COMMENDED

Regiment Very Favorably Impresses Major Mills, Inspecting Officer---Excellent Showing Made Last Night

"Men of Earl Grey's Rifles, I want before the conclusion of this inspection to congratulate you on the excellent showing you have made as a regiment. I am pleased to see here such a display of efficiency considering the disadvantages under which you are laboring. I had no idea that you were up against difficulties in the way of lack of accommodation such as I have seen, and am all the more impressed by your fine display of efficiency. Captain Stork, you have reason to be proud of your men, and I think the city ought to take a pride in and encourage such a splendid body of clean, healthy and efficient riflemen."

With these intensely congratulatory terms Major J. E. Mills, commanding officer of Militia District No. 11, summed up his opinion of Earl Grey's Rifles after his inspection of the company last night. He added more directly to the men that he had every reason to hope and believe that before many months have elapsed they will have an armory with drill hall, gymnasium, baths, recreation, reading and billiard rooms—a place solid permanent and substantial which will be something of a regimental home to them. Major Mills was evidently very highly impressed indeed with the turnout of Prince Rupert's own regiment last night. "You are not perfect," he told the men, lest any might develop swelled head. "You are not perfect; none of us is perfect, but you have made an excellent showing under extremely adverse conditions."

Drill at Government Wharf.

The inspection last night was held by the very welcome courtesy of Wharfmaster J. R. Beattie in the spacious warehouse of the Government wharf. It was unfortunate that on the occasion when the usual open space available was most required the rain should have slopped it up, making drill impossible. This, however, served to show still more forcibly to the inspecting officer the hardships under which Earl Greys have worked. Thanks to Mr. Beattie, the inspection was carried out under much better conditions than would otherwise have been possible.

Excellent Appearance.

After effecting smartly a few evolutions at command of Major Mills, the corps, under Captain Stork, went through a series of formations and marched past in splendid shape. Somewhat handicapped even at best by lack of space, the company still made good and more. During the march past Major Mills remarked aside to Captain Stork: "They march splendidly," and certainly the phalanx of men moved like clockwork, every unit in absolute precision.

REGULAR POLICE ARMORY PLAN

Will Use Sulphuric Acid to Drive Out Criminals—Coats of Mail and Bullet Proof Shields to Be Supplied to the Police.

Paris, May 30.—As the result of a conference between the Premier and the chief police authorities, a number of radical reforms will be introduced in French police methods.

Police Prefect Lepine advocates the installation of telephones, accessible only to the police, who by means of pocket transmitters could communicate with headquarters.

In view of the valuable services rendered at the siege of the motor car bandits by bullet proof shields, the prefect favors their further use, supplemented by coats of mail.

He has also suggested the use of sulphuric acid capsules, which would render the air so poisonous that criminals would be obliged to come out of hiding places and surrender.

MEDICAL MAGICIAN

New York Doctor Can Predetermine Sex of Children.

Portland, Ore., May 30.—In a letter which Mrs. Lareine Helen Baker, a Portland woman prominent in Eugenist circles, has received, Dr. Allyn Gorton, New York physician, scientist and Eugenist, declares that he has an ambition to prove that within the next five years, under proper esthetic surroundings and influences, and under his system of breeding humans, a girl baby can be brought into the world as his daughter. Dr. Gorton, at the age of 80, recently became the father of twins.

FINE NEW BOAT ON TRIAL TRIPS

Mr. R. G. Johnson's Cannery Tender Has Just Been Engineered at the Rupert Marine Ironworks, after Being Launched at Inverness.

Making good at present after successful trial trips out from Prince Rupert is the new power boat built for heavy duty by R. G. Johnson, of Inverness Cannery. The boat was built at the cannery, and after being engineered at the Rupert Marine Ironworks ran her trial trips this week. She is 48 feet long, 10 foot beam, and draws 3 feet six inches of water. Her power is a 20 h.p. Frisco Standard engine, and she is able to develop a speed of eight knots.

Built according to Mr. Johnson's own knowledge of the requirements of the service to which she is to be put, the new boat which has not as yet been named is a very substantial one. Her framing is of oak, her stem and stern-posts of yellow cedar and her planking of fir. She made excellent speed and showed thorough seaworthiness in rough weather the other day on the way to Inverness from Rupert.
