BRITISH FLEET ENTERING SUAREZ TODAY

Last night the Governor General of Madagascar telegraphed Vichy that the position was critical with the fall of Diego Suarez imminent. There was bitter and bloody fighting in the streets of Madagascar's principal city at that time.

A fleet of twenty-three British naval vessels was reported cruising off Courier Bay.

Two 7,000-ton French cruisers are reported missing from Madagascar. One suggestion was that they might have joined the British and another that they were off to Indo-China to rejoin other vessels of the French fleet.

It was thought in some circles here that Vichy, as a result of the Madagascar occupation, might declare war on Great Britain and turn over the French fleet to Germany.
