Canuck Troops Train at Sea To Learn Invasion Tactics; Gruelling Job Is Involved

By ROSS MUNRO

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, May 7:—Special forces of Canadian infantry have been training at sea with the Royal Navy on combined operations and coastal raiding as the Canadian army steps up assault training of every battalion with the ultimate objective of striking somewhere in Europe.

In the last few weeks I went to sea with one of these infantry commando units.

This training is making the entire army think offensively of operations across the North Sea or the English Channel. The troops are training and planning harder than ever before for action which might be launched anywhere from Narvik to the Spanish border.

With the R. A. F. giving continental targets a non-stop pounding and with talk of a second front heard from Whitehall to country pubs, the Canadians are preparing for anything from reconnaissance to all-out attack.

Shock-Troop Training

This shock-troop training has been built up secretly for months to a climax of work with the navy in commando-like forces. Raiding parties have been established following battle drill instruction throughout the army. Hundreds of officers and men have been going to these schools to instruct the battalions in assault.

The goal is to make every infantry unit as hard and as skilled as commandos so they can stage frontal assaults and push on into enemy territory. Maps, photographs and relief models of the European coast are being studied.

Close contact is kept with Lord Louis Mountbatten's combined operations headquarters and the Canadian detachments doing advanced training went to sea aboard combined operations ships which have carried British commando raiders. They were the first Canadian army unit to train with the Royal Navy.

The force I was with was commanded by Maj. Brian McCool of the Royal Regiment of Canada

ALASKA RAILWAY

Project For Line Across Canada Considered—Inquiries Regarding P. G. E.

VICTORIA, May 7: (CP)—Government circles said last night that they had been approached by several United States interests regarding acquisition of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway as a link in a possible railway to Alaska. No details are available.

Such a railway would mean construction of sixty-two miles of line from Quesnel to Prince George and thence to Finlay Forks along the Rocky Mountain Trench through the Yukon to Alaska.

The statement here coincided with a dispatch from Washington saying that plans were being considered for the eventual construction of a railway across Canada to connect the United States with Alaska, United States Army engineers to be sent out to make surveys.

Four Merchant Vessels Also Sunk In Running Fight On Arctic Convoy Route—H.M.S. Jaguar Gone

LONDON, May 7:—Loss of a ten thousand ton cruiser launched in 1939 and four convoyed merchantmen in a running sea fight along the storm-tossed Arctic supply lane to Soviet Russia was announced today by the Admiralty which declared that ninety percent of the convoy got through safely in spite of plane, warship and u-boat attacks. The cost of the attacks to the Germans was one destroyer sunk, another damaged severely, at least two dive bombers destroyed and others perhaps crippled, the Admiralty said. The Admiralty also announces the loss of the 1600-ton submarine Jaguar, no details as to the point of loss or date being given.

EMPLOYING RESTRICTED

Particulars Received Here of New Federal Order-In-Council

Particulars have been received by local military authorities of a recently passed order-in-council which definitely forbids the employment in any restricted occupation of any male between the ages of seventeen and forty-five who has not either been discharged from the armed forces or has been rejected for active service.

The reason for the promulgation of the order, it is explained, is because of the growing scarcity of men available for service in the army forces and for employment in the war industries. This means is being taken to restrict the entry of men who are of military age and physically fit for service with the armed forces into certain occupations which are relatively unessential or can be satisfactorily filled by women or men who are beyond military age or are physically unfit for service with the armed forces.

Under the order no male person shall enter into employment in any restricted occupation unless such male person has obtained written permission from the national selective service officer.

JAP MOVING INTO CHINA

Nipponese Break-Through Along Burma Continues—Reaches Chefang

CHUNGKING, May 7.—A Japanese mechanized spearhead with warplane support has swept twenty-five miles along the Burma road into Chinese territory and reached the town of Chefang where very heavy fighting is in progress, a Chinese Army spokesman said today.

The Japanese break-through along the Burma road has become so serious that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has gone to the Yunnan front to take personal command of his armies which have been pushed up the Solwin River for a distance of fifty miles towards Chungking.

The British forces are also in retreat and some have been evacuated into India.

JOIN UP ISLANDS

Australia Plans To Merge Papua And New Guinea

AN ADVANCED ALLIED BASE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, May 7:—Even while the Allies and the Japs are trading bombs and machine gun slugs over these islands, the Australian government is working out a political and geographical merger which will combine Papua with northern New Guinea and the surrounding islands, now used by the Japs for their bases.

The fact that the Japs are in Lae and Salamaua in northern New Guinea and Rabaul in New Britain, makes no difference in the Australian plans and Rabaul has been designated as the future capital of the new united territory. The officer commanding the Allied forces here is also at the moment filling the functions of governor of the whole shooting match.

R.A.F. Smashes Nazi Industries

LONDON, May 7 (Canadian Press)—Royal Air Force bombers continued smashing attacks on industries, feeding the German war machine by hammering Stuttgart for the third successive night and roaring into France again today by daylight. Seven of the night raiders are missing, the Air Ministry said. Docks at Nantes were also bombed during the night.

POLITICS ARE OUT

Movement Away From Party In United Kingdom

LONDON, May 7.—A movement away from party has become noticeable in United Kingdom politics lately. No longer are leaders of the Conservatives, Liberal or Labor parties in parliament helping to form opinion on outstanding issues in this war. Rather do they find their importance to the nation dependent on what they are doing as members of the non-party Churchill cabinet.

Churchill himself does not owe his leadership of the nation to any support from the Conservatives of whom he is the official leader. Sir Stafford Cripps has no party following at all. Oliver Lyttelton, nominally a Conservative, has taken no part in politics. The new secretary of state for war, Sir James Grigg, a former civil servant, is equally an outsider.

In short, the war cabinet which began as a carefully balanced structure expressing the strength of the rival groups in parliament, now relies for its main support on men whose allegiance to party is either non-existent or at most slight.

Caused Angry Protest

True, Churchill stirred up a somewhat angry protest when, at the annual meeting of the Conservative party (which at one time derided his forecasts of Hitler's war plans), he declared: "As your leader I shall hope that when the whole story has been told, it will be said of the Conservative party in parliament and throughout the land that they strove for peace too long but when war came they proved themselves the main part of the rock on which the salvation of Britain was founded and the freedom of mankind regained."

RED ARMY ATTACKING

MOSCOW, May 7:—The Red Army, attacking across bogs on the Leningrad front, was reported today to have driven a wedge between two German forces and encircled one Nazi detachment in an important sector west of the long-besieged city.
