Quickening of Relations Between Communities To Follow New Link

(By Nigel Sherwood)

Now that the highway is finished there will be a quickening of life in the social and business relations between Prince Rupert and Terrace. People who in the past would have hesitated before embarking on a visit to Terrace which involved travelling by railway may take a run out to the interior town on the spur of the moment.

A fine morning and not too much going at the office may decide this sort of thing henceforth, whereas in the past such a trip always meant some amount of making of extra plans. A similar speeding up of intercommunication will happen in business. It will be easier to run up to Terrace to talk over impending business, and easier to make a trip to Prince Rupert.

The distance between the two places is but 92 miles and with an up-to-date road such as the highway is it means only around three hours driving.

Scenery Is Wonderful

A few travellers who have already tried the new road all express their amazement at the wonderful scenery of mountain, forest and river. Although these scenes had been viewed from the train on many previous occasions, they had not been seen in their fullness.

The section of country between the coast and Hazelton is equal in scenic grandeur and beauty to anything on the continent.

Two miles before reaching Terrace can be seen a well appointed farm a little way off on the right hand side. This is the dairy farm operated by the Frank Brothers. Henry Frank, father of these young men, came to the district with his wife in the year 1908, at the same time as the Rev. T. J. Marsh; Mr. and Mrs. Frank built the house and barn which became the nucleus of the present farm and set to work clearing the heavy growth of forest trees which covered all the land in those days. Jack Frank of Prince Rupert was the first white child born in the new settlement, called at that time Kitsumyallum. The steamboat used to put off passengers and freight nearby. The actual landing place and buildings have since been demolished by the river. Rev. Mr. Marsh had been ministering to the men on the work of building the railway and, when he came to Kitsumyallum, he set up the little church and school house. Both these buildings are still standing in the landscape garden of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. MacIntosh.

The Village of Terrace was incorporated in 1928 and the present population is estimated at about 1500. There are several restaurants, two hotels, half a dozen stores, two garages and last but not least four church communities. There is a park and part of this has been left wooded which adds much to the pleasantness of the local scene. The park is the gift of George Little, founder of Terrace, and well known operator of the local sawmill. Mr. Little came here in 1908 and before long had set up his mill which was the predecessor of the present mill which has a capacity of thirty or forty thousand feet. There are other mills nearby. C. L. M. Giggey has mills both in Terrace and at Remo of about the same capacity and three miles away gave to the town its character as a centre of the forest products industry.

Besides sawmills Terrace does considerable business in supplying ties and bridge timbers to the railway and there is a large pole yard where thousands of cedar telegraph poles are loaded on freight cars.

Terrace District
Beautiful Scene

But it would be a mistake to suppose that Terrace has the appearance of an industrial town. It hasn't. The prevailing impression is of small orchards and farms and here and there a well kept flower garden. There are pleasing-looking residences in and about the Village.

When the pioneers came to the district there were no roads; they came by boat, which used to navigate the Skeena as far as Hazelton. Now the district is well equipped with roads one can drive 25 miles to the north, taking in Kitsumyallum Lake and to Lakelse Lake, which is fourteen miles by road but which is only about eight in a direct line. Lakelse Lake is well known to Prince Rupert as a favorite camping site and its fishing has the best of reputations.

It is of course no secret that a considerable military camp has been built in the vicinity of the Village. What used to be a golf course is now covered with substantial buildings. Also that there is an airport not far off, to which an excellent road is even now in course of completion. The airport is near Lakelse Lake. Visitors to the lake are always interested in the hot springs, which are said to be the largest mineral hot springs in the North American continent. The biggest of these springs is over 100 feet across and maintains a temperature of 180 degrees Fahrenheit.

Leaving Terrace those who continue their journey along the new highway will after a quarter mile, cross over the Skeena on the fine steel bridge. It is worth while to pause on this bridge to take in the fine panorama of river and forested mountain that comes into view. If the day is clear one can see from this point the seven peaks of Measnikinist, or "Seven Sisters," a fine range of sharp peaks some forty miles away to the east.

Besides the benefits that will accrue from road connections with Prince Rupert, there is the overwhelming fact that Terrace and the Pacific coast now in connection with the continental system of roads and it is reasonable to expect visitors from both east and west to come along the new highway in increasing numbers as the years go by.
