

Investment Opportunities In Peace

This is the most selective market in many years. While honeycombed with profit opportunities, yet it is dotted with many dangerous stocks.

Momentous current events are bound to confuse investors, causing cross currents in the stock market. Out of the current confusion, however, is expected to emerge a resumption of the rising general trend, but with great selectivity with respect to stocks and relative movements.

Now is the time to prepare for that resumption, if your portfolio is not already in shape to make most of it.

The post war boom market is yet to come but it will definitely be restricted to industries and mines which alone can benefit from the removal of wartime restrictions.

At the present time it is quite evident that some 20 industries and 20 or more mines will be in this classification. Upon your ability to make the proper selections rests your opportunities for profit.

Our Weekly Market Forecast covers in a concise, interesting and informative manner the main developments behind the stocks.

It will be sent to you at no cost upon your request.

Radio Talent In Audition Events

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Sept. 15.—Queues are so much an accepted thing in Britain now that even singers, pianists, conjurers and comedians lined up outside the BBC Midland regional station here for auditions, hoping to find fame as radio stars. It all began when the BBC announced that a nation-wide search was being made for "regional" talent. But the dreams were shattered when the hopeful learned that auditions would be confined to selected artists and by appointment only.

KISSES AGAIN—FOUR A PENNY

LONDON, Sept. 15.—A young woman paused in the act of pushing a telegram under the grill in a telegraph office and asked: "Can you send kisses again, miss?" "Yes, four for a penny." "I'll have two pennorth," and down went eight crosses in a stubby pencil. A letter-writer, reporting the
