Voice of Skeena

Past the headwaters of the Skeena,
And the Bulkley River too,
Lies a land of peaceful quiet
'Neath a sky of azure blue.

A city of the wilderness,
The trees like buildings
stand,
Trails that wind like avenues
From hills to meadowlands.

A land of soul misgivings
If you should not know the way

Of the trapper of the thirties—
Lean, hungry years, but gay.

He oft recalls of hunting tribes
Not for pleasure of the kill.
He knows it meant his livelihood.

The frying meat, his thrill.

Potatoes grown of virgin soil
Of carrots and turnips too
A reward of his summer's toil—
A good old Irish stew.

IRISH STORY IS DELIGHTFUL

Replete with songs, fun and blarney-filled romance, "Top o' the Morning," co-starring Bing Crosby, Ann Blyth, Barry Fitzgerald and Hume Cronyn, is the delightful week-end offering at the Capitol Theatre. It was to have opened last night but the film was late in arriving so starts tonight and continues tomorrow.

With a setting as Irish as its name, the picture tells a provocative story of the theft of the famed Blarney Stone from its
